A barn on the farm of Mr. Frank Hopkins, about four miles from Sandy Spring, was destroyed by fire last Sunday afternoon; also 30 barrels of corn, several tons of hay and a quantity of straw and fodder. Mr. Hopkins' boy, about 6 years of age, was playing with matches in the barnyard. When one ignited he threw it in the straw. In a moment the straw was on fire, and the blaze soon enveloped the building. Several horses and cattle were in the structure and could only be gotten out by prodding them with pitchforks. The building and contents, it is understood, were insured in the Montgomery Mutual of Sandy Spring.

Edwards' Ferry Items.

Again our little village, situated on the placid old Potomac, is heard from, and though so long we have remained in obscurity, and kept aloof from the outside world, as it were, still we are the same peaceful and enterprising inhabitants of old.

It is strange to relate that the river has been entirely frozen over three times since Christmas, thus affording plenty of fine ice for the harvesters, and, too, the young folks thoroughly enjoyed skating, and frequently their merry peals of laughter could be heard for some little distance.

Our faithful old ferryman, Uncle George Clark, is rejoicing that Spring is here, and the time is nigh when he can resume his duty of carrying passengers to and fro across the river, and he says there is every prospect for splendid Spring bass fishing. Already some of our sporting friends have begun to go in pursuit of the wily fish, and some very nice strings have been caught by means of dip nets.

At this time our town is not quite so stirring, but in about two weeks, when the water will have been turned in the canal, and the boats begin again to carry traffic from Cumberland to Washington, and visa versa, then begins the hustle and bustle, you can't imagine how very much life is in this romantic looking old place, everybody is smiling and has a pleasant word, and the "cluck, cluck," to the mules can be heard in the distance, and oh! how thrilling to be awakened in the dead of the night by the strains from the boat horn, (warning to lock tender of their coming,) of the beautiful melody of "Just One Girl," or some similar dreamy piece, that just puts one in a trance, and then to fall asleep and dream you are in fairy land, only to awaken to the sad realities of life on the morn, 'tis sad!

Quite a large force of hands are at work on the canal here, putting it in readiness for the water, which it is said will be turned in on the 17th inst.

Prof. Stout has quite a large and interesting school, and last Friday they had quite an exciting debate, the subject selected being, "Which has the most influence over man, love of woman or the love of money?" and of course the former won by a unanimous vote.

Several of our young folks are off at school at present, being much missed. It seems we are lucky, or, I should say, it must be attributed to brightness on the part of the pupil in securing scholarships, and amongst those are Messrs. Outerbridge Spates, at St. John's College, Thomas Chiswell, at Charlotte Hall, and Miss Cornelia Jarboe, at St. Mary's Seminary, and we wish to congratulate them on the great progress we learn they are making in their classes.

Mr. Samuel Jarboe can boast of a fine flock of 56 lambs.

Mr. Charles Poole expects to move to Potomac neighborhood in the near future.

Mrs. W. R. Beall recently returned from a visit to her daughter in Cherrydale, Va.

Mr. James Cornwell is much improved.

Mr. James Elgin had a delightful trip to Dr. Frank Elgin's, at Glenolden, Pa., and though much pleased with that country he says our people are so much "better." Now, isn't he nice to say that!

Mr. Howard Spates has accepted a position in Pennsylvania, and we wish him success in his undertaking.

Miss Eleanor Jones is visiting the Misses Jarboe.

Enough at present, for soon again you shall hear from us.

A Modern Suburban Resort.

Within the next ninety days improvements costing upward of $150,000 will be made by the Bobinger Brothers to their well-known property at Cabin John Bridge, on the Conduit road, six miles from Washington. Some time ago the Messrs. Bobinger entered into an agreement with Mr. J. H. Livingston, who established and conducted the suburban resorts at Chestnut Hill and Woodside, near Philadelphia, to transform their place into a first-class amusement resort. Since then Mr. Livingston has been making plans and at the same time accomplishing a large amount of other preliminary work. Hundreds of trees in the ravine and along the canal and riverside have been cut down, Howell & Taylor, of this city, engineers, have been busily engaged in surveying and laying out sites, and Architect J. J. Smithmeyer has been directing the general theme of design. Within a few days an army of laborers, mechanics and expert artisans will be engaged.

It is the purpose to make at Cabin John a suburban resort second to none in the country and equip it with novel features and high-class modern amusements.

There will be a new entrance to Cabin John for those who do not go in carriages. This will be by means of a highly ornamented steel promenade bridge, which will be constructed over the ravine through which Cabin John run flows. It will have a cantilever effect in appearance, and will be 576 feet long and fourteen feet wide, with an ornate railing of intricate design. At regular intervals on either side balconies will extend out and over the ravine, and these will contain iron settees for strollers. There will be seven of these balconies on either side, fourteen in all, and arising from each will be double arches, crossing the bridge diagonally, upon which vari-colored electric globes will be set. This bridge, for which the contract has been awarded to the Berlin Iron Bridge Company of East Berlin, Conn., will cost about $50,000 when constructed and equipped and will be placed about 100 feet below historic Cabin John Bridge, toward the river, and on a level with it. On the farther side of the ravine it will rest on the bluff near the rear of the hotel.

South of this a few feet will be erected a pavilion 62 by 90 feet in dimensions, two stories in height and of attractive design. The ground floor will be devoted to a restaurant and the upper story to the starting point of a gravity and scenic railroad, which will run at a commanding height above ground a distance of 820 feet straight away from the Potomac. The cars will be propelled by electricity generated by a 100 horse power engine, situated in a power house to be erected nearby, and the road equipped with the block system. Along its route will be a scenic tunnel with electric features. The contract for this pavilion and railroad has been awarded to L. A. Thompson, of New York, for $30,000, and the contractor is already on the ground and at work.

South of the hotel and near the edge of the bluff overlooking the Potomac a carousel, or merry-go round, ninety feet square, will be erected. The contract for this has been awarded to G. A. Dentzal, of Philadelphia, at his bid of $16,000. The horses and animals on this whirligig will be stationary on the outer edge and have a loping motion on the inner tier. East of the merry-go round a Ferris wheel, fifty feet in diameter, so arranged that riders will be afforded a view of the river, will be erected, and to the west will be a theatre with a capacity of seating 2,000 persons.

Cabin John run will be held by a dam to be constructed near the canal, and its waters will be formed into a lake covering a large part of the bottom of the ravine, and being several acres in extent. Electric launches and rowboats will be placed in the lake, and a boardwalk eight feet wide, protected by a rustic cedar fence, will be built along its edge on the west bank.

A bridge will be thrown over the canal to the river bank from the bluff west of Cabin John run, and steps will lead down to the water's edge. A boat landing will be built on the north bank of the canal, where an electric boat, which is to run on the canal, will arrive and depart.

The contract for the promenade bridge calls for its completion not later than May 28, and the contracts for the gravity and scenic railway and carousel call for their completion not later than May 25. Wherever opportunity offers there will be rustic pavilions erected on the lake cliffs and river bluffs, and a music stand will be built for the accommodation of an orchestra.

West of the main grounds will be a pony track for little ones, and swings and other amusements will be provided for them. The grounds will be laid out in wide walks of broken stone base, topped with packed gravel, and a Cincinnati landscape gardener will arrive Monday to prepare for numerous flower beds and parterres. Three hundred settees will be distributed through the grounds.

Electric features will play a prominent part in the general scheme. There will be electric lights everywhere, even in the cedar trees, and arrangements have been made with the Washington Traction and Electric Company for special service, and special machinery has been ordered to supply it. An automobile charging plant will be established in this connection.

General Superintendent F. L. Hart, Superintendent R. E Lee and Engineer Upton, in charge of the suburban lines of the Washington Traction and Electric Company, spent several hours Friday afternoon considering the terminal facilities of the electric railroad. The wooden bridge across the ravine immediately east of Cabin John is to be replaced with a steel structure a few yards above, the abutments for which are now being constructed. The cars will cross over this and run in a loop around to the entrance to the promenade bridge and return. Here a large platform will be erected. A part of the present track system at the terminal system as now situated will be used to park cars and track room for forty cars will be provided, so that crowds can be quickly brought to the city. The entire Great Falls line is being doubled tracked, and this will be completed by May 15. All the wooden bridges and trestles, fifteen in number, will be replaced by steel bridges, and cars will run from 14th and East Capitol streets to Cabin John Bridge without change.

"I have been long convinced," said Mr. Livingston Saturday to a Star reporter, who visited Cabin John to learn about the proposed improvements, "that Washington would support a suburban resort where high class modern amusements would be provided, and I am equally sure the wisdom of the big investment here will be proven. The natural advantages here are unrivaled for the purpose, and every one of them will be utilized to the best effect I estimate that we will have at least 600,000 people out here this season."—Wash. Star of Monday.

Suspects Arrested.—A dispatch from Boyd's, dated March 6th, says:

John W. Williams, special officer, and Deputy Sheriff White arrested this afternoon, near Boyd's, John Braxton, alias Geo. Johnson, on a charge of theft and being an escaped convict from the Maryland House of Correction. Braxton, it is also claimed, tallies with the description of the negro wanted in Washington for the attempted murder and robbery of Moy Sing, a Chinaman, there on Saturday morning last.

Braxton was in the vicinity of Gaithersburg yesterday and was seen by Deputy Sheriff Gaither, but succeeded in escaping arrest, and Deputy Gaither notified Williams at Boyd's yesterday to look out for him and gave his description. He succeeded in locating him in the railroad depot at Boyd's this afternoon and went out, leaving the negro and his companion in the station while he made an effort to communicate with the sheriff's office at Rockville. While Williams was out Braxton and his companion became suspicious and left, making toward Barnesville, following the railroad tracks. Williams notified Deputy White to come down the track and meet them, which he did, placing the couple under arrest. They were committed to jail at Rockville this evening.

Lecture.—Rev. Julius E. Grammer, of Baltimore, will lecture at the Sandy Spring Lyceum, on Wednesday, March 14, at 7:30 P. M. All are cordially invited and are promised a rare intellectual treat. Admittance free.

A Pastor's Labors.

The following excerpt taken from his resume of the year's work, shows what prayer, patience and perseverance can accomplish.

One of the Members.

The worthiest work is the gathering in of souls, so, first, let us mention the redeemed. In our labor together there were twenty-seven souls brought into the kingdom. We would speak reverently of the number of Sunday School girls and boys who were thus early led to follow the Master. A prayer is offered that the seed of the kingdom scattered in other humble hearts may yet yield fruit.

The financial exhibit is commendable, and there has been an unparalleled advance in missionary work.

A cottage prayer meeting was organized by the pastor in an isolated section, largely attended and fraught with pleasure and profit. A young men's prayer meeting was conducted with success. The result of the Sunday School work was the lifting up of our school from the undesirable rank of "No. 21" to "No. 9." It remains but to be said that the minister's work in all avenues was inspired by prayerful mood and purest motive, and amid reverses and triumphs, we would thank the gracious Father for His goodness. Unto Him would we bring our faults and failures for kind decree, our fruit and faith for commendation. Let us breathe a benediction upon our church and a prayer for blessing upon its every member.

In His service, ROBERT ELMORE.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Mary Frances Knott departed this life March 1, 1900, at 2 o'clock, A. M., at the home of her brother, Thomas R. Clagett, near Rockville, Md.

She was a loving mother, devoted daughter and a kind sister. She could say what very few could, that she had never disobeyed her mother. She was a kind and charitable neighbor, and always greeted every one with a bright smile and kind words. Her life was one of self-sacrifice. She always thought of others' comfort and pleasure first, and was ever ready to extend a helping hand to the needy.

During her last illness her sufferings were intense of both body and mind, which she bore with Christian fortitude, although loving hands administered all assistance to allay her suffering which was possible to do. She was a consistent member of the Catholic Church, and practiced her holy religion all through life, and particularly during her many trials and tribulations. She received the last sacraments before she died. What a comfort and consolation to her afflicted ones to see her so calm and resigned to her fate, as she lately said she was only waiting to die.

Her funeral took place Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at St. Mary's Church, Rockville, where Requiem Mass was said for the repose of her soul by Father Cunnane. Her remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of relatives and friends. L.
