The one hundred and thirty-second volume of the Maryland Reports, containing the reports of cases heard and decided in the Court of Appeals, is expected soon to be published. These reports begin with the adoption of the Constitution of 1851 and contain for the period covered a syllabus of every authorized report of cases argued and determined in the Court of Appeals, a statement of the case and the opinion of the court in full. But few cases are not reported and these are of minor importance.

C., has had notification of the fact that checks are being held in the bureau of War Risk Insurance for the following people: John Corbin, Barnesville, Md.; Richard Henry Booker, R. F. D. 3, Great Falls, Md.; Mary Davis Churchill, 8 W. Melrose St., Chevy Chase, Md.; Sarah Boy, Gaithersburg, Md.; Agnes Lightfoot, Barnesville (or Beallsville), Md. Any further information concerning those mentioned above will be appreciated if forwarded or telephoned to the Red Cross Home Service Section, Rockville, Md.

Noticing that one of the iron cots in a cell in the jail here had been wrecked, Turnkey Wm. P. Trail made an investigation and discovered and frustrated what he believes to have been an attempt to break jail on the part of John E. Flaherty, Raymond Frayne and Gus Tibpig, committed a few days ago on the charge of breaking into the home of Daniel Miller, at Takoma Park, this county, and stealing jewelry and other articles valued at about $200. Turnkey Trail found that three of the iron bars of the window in the cell had been sawed in two at one end, and it is believed that the three men, all of whom were occupying the one cell, were awaiting a favorable opportunity to use pieces of the iron cot to twist back the bars far enough to enable them to squeeze through and gain their freedom. Sheriff Aud has had the three men placed in separate cells and has attached a ball and chain to an ankle of each.

Lafe Pence Would Turn C. & O. Canal Into Coal Railroad.

Is it feasible to turn the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal into a railroad?

Lafe Pence, former Congressman from Colorado, has a plan with that result in view.

In brief, the plan is to convert the old canal into a rail carrier and to develop at the same time a power plant at Great Falls.

Mr. Pence and his associates (he does not divulge who they are) propose:

1. To run a double track railroad over the canal ditch from Cumberland, Md., to Washington, D. C.

2. To develop the potential water power of the Potomac river through construction of a chain of storage and impounding lakes along the river with minor power plants for local electric power and with a main storage power plant at Great Falls.

3. To reserve in the canal ditch under the railroad bed a subway or conduit to carry water, oil mains and pipes, or electric light power, telephone and telegraph lines.

4. To combine and co-ordinate the canal and water-power development projects within the District of Columbia so as to supplement extension of a contemplated park system in the western and northwestern section of Washington.

Secretary of War Baker, before his departure for France last week, had the plan outlined by Mr. Pence. He carried with him a bundle of maps and considerable data on the subject.

Since Secretary Baker was born and reared in Martinsburg, W. Va., one of the towns that would be vitally affected by such a venture, he is already familiar with the environs of that end of the proposed railroad.

According to Mr. Pence's estimates, the undertaking would involve the expenditure of about $150,000,000 and would require two years to accomplish.

While Congress would have to determine the financial plan, Mr. Pence proposes that the Government and the District take over the improvement, seeking reimbursement in charges for leases and franchises placed at rates to cover interest on and sinking fund for bond redemption, cost of repairs, maintenance, and improvements.

He points out that thousands of soldiers would be given employment and the Government reap a handsome profit.

Mr. Pence has statistics showing that 92,000,000 tons of soft coal are sent to the tidewater from the coal fields of West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

"Statistics for 1916 show that 30,000,000 tons of coal could be diverted to the new railroad," he says. "If the transportation cost saving could be only 20 cents a ton, or one-half the estimated cost of saving, the total saving would be $,6,000,000, or 4 per cent interest on $150,000,000.

"This estimate does not include the certain revenues from passenger and general commercial uses of this proposed railroad, or revenue from charges for use of the subway under the roadbed."

Mr Pence says that the proposed line would connect with the Baltimore and Ohio, the Pennsylvania, and the Western Maryland railroads at Cumberland and relieve them of some of the heavy burden of handling the coal business of that section.

The line would connect with the Washington terminals by entering Washington at Georgetown, passing through tunnels under K and L streets and Massachusetts and New York avenues.

A spur track is proposed under the Public Library to the old Land Office building, which would be used for depot, terminals and express and mail station. Other terminals would be erected on the Mall, according to the plan.

The aggregate length of the proposed tunnels under the city would be six miles, according to Mr. Pence.

Mr. Pence sees in the plan possibility of relief in the existing street car congestion.

"The tunnels under the business streets of Washington," he explains, "from the canal railroad route to the Union Station will afford the proposed road outlets from Washington to the north, south, and east. Subway stations in the shopping districts and a station at the Georgetown tunnel entrance would assist materially in relieving the street railway congestion."

Details affecting the Georgetown terminals and freight yards have not entered into the plans of Mr. Pence and his associates.

He is already working out plans for taking the matter to the State Legislatures of Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.

Should Great Falls be developed, the proposed railroad could be electrified, Mr. Pence says.

At Great Falls, he says, a 3,000-acre park could be developed and made the most beautiful in the world. He urges the building of a paved road from Washington to the Falls.

Along the canal route, wherever small power sites are developed, Mr. Pence says the lakes from the impounding of the waters could be beautified and each of them used as the site of a park.

"The whole system is proposed as an adjunct to existing carriers and not as a rival or competitor to any of them," says Mr. Pence. "They are overburdened now.

"As to terminals and other details, we are not concerned. That is for the proper authorities to determine."

Mr. Hunt's Announcement.

THE CHANGES WHICH HAVE BEEN WROUGHT IN THE RANKS OF DEMOCRACY IN MONTGOMERY COUNTY.

To My Fellow-Countians of Montgomery:

A significant change has taken place within the ranks of Montgomery County's Democracy since the last primary campaign. How well I remember the evening just before the last general election, when, in the hall at Gaithersburg, the drive for the success of our candidates was closed until the hour the polls should open. On that evening, on that platform, sat, in company with the Hon. Robert E. Lee, of Baltimore city, six young and stalwart Democrats of this county, and how many of them are living today? The appeal they made to the voters was magnificent indeed—for party unity, for better civic conditions, forgetting family and factional differences, and join there together as one body, placing party loyalty above factional strife as it should be for the success of each and every candidate on the ticket. As I sat there on that platform after addressing the very appreciative audience, I little thought that three of those fine young men were to be taken from our midst in but a little while. In the centre, beside Mr. Lee, sat Mr. John A. Garrett, who acted as chairman of the occasion. To his right and left sat the late Hon. J. Dawson Williams, the late Mr. Norman Bouic, the late Mr. W. Outerbridge Spates and Mr. William Prettyman and I.

It is said that death aims at a shining mark, and no truer saying could be applied in this case, for of the above three men who were called by the all-seeing eye and hand of God to their reward not one word of criticism will I hear from any mouth. No matter what differences of opinion they may have had with their fellow-countians, they were brave men, fearless christians, devoted to their family interests, and firm in their convictions of what was right and just. Let their spirit shine forth and live together with that of our late County Commissioner Hazel Metzger, who was also a most able man, as a beacon light for the rising generation to hold in its vision, and may their spirits initiate in those that are growing up among us the thought of the better things and the higher impulses of life and human nature, for these men and those young men who went forth to battle from this county, and offered their services to their country in the time of need, have shown a valiant spirit and glorious conquest. And those too who staid at home and worked ceaselessly on the farms to raise the necessary produce to feed our boys in the field deserve unstinted praise, for they too have done their utmost to help lick the enemy.

I campaigned in this county for the success of the Democratic ticket, for the Red Cross and for all other beneficent causes. I offered my services to my government and would have cheerfully laid down my life for my country as two of my cousins have done, one of whose widow is living in this county, the wife of the late Col. Jimmie Shannon. My two brothers are overseas now and both are married and have children here at home. Unfortunately my physical affliction prevented me from performing military service, but there is nothing wrong with my brain and I am going to work long and hard until life's journey is over. I have a host of friends thoughout the county, and both they and my neighbors, whom I have grown up with here in the county, have urged me to announce myself for the candidacy of the office of County Commissioner from the Fourth Collection District. You will recall that eight years ago, with practically no organization and when I was a very young man, I ran third in a field of seven, and now that I am far better known throughout the county I know that I will win if you my friend and reader, will give me your vote. The progressive and natural advancement of the county is going on, the men elected to office should be those who are best qualified to fill the position sought. We are alive, not dead, and we should see that our county keeps step with or a little ahead of civilization as it advances. We should see that the breadwinner has justice, that the women in our homes are made as comfortable as is possible, and that the drudgery of life, so far as can be, should be lifted from their shoulders. We should have a good-roads system carefully mapped out so that the farmers and citizens can safely haul their crops and other necessaries, and at the same time keep the cost to the taxpayers at the lowest possible rate. We should see that our children have every opportunity for a good education, for upon this is based the very fundamental and vital principles of all advancement of civilization. Harry Hunt, candidate for County Commissioner, stands for all of these good things and more, which I will explain fully when I see you in person, which I hope to do before long.

I care not to what so-called faction you belong. I am a Democrat before a factionalist, and an American before everything. I want your vote in the coming primary election if you are a Democrat. I want your support if you are a brave American. I want your friendship if you are a fellow-countian, and I want your respect no matter what you are.

Give me a chance, that's all I ask; and if I don't make good, turn me down if ever I show my head again. That's fair enough, isn't it? Are you on? I am sure you are.

Yours, for good luck to us both.

H. J. HUNT, 3RD.

Official Summary Of The League Covenant Text.

The following official summary of the covenant of the league of nations has been issued:

"(1) The league of nations is founded in order to promote international cooperation and to secure peace. The league will include: (a) the belligerent states named in a document annexed to the covenant; (b) all the neutral states so named, and (c) in the future any self-governing country whose admission is approved by two-thirds of the states already members of the league.

"A state may withdraw from the league, provided it has kept its obligations to date, on giving two years' notice.

"(2) The league will act through an assembly comprising not more than three representatives of each of the member states, each state having only one vote, and a council comprising for the present one representative of each of the five great powers and each of four other powers as selected from time to time by the assembly.

"The number of powers of each class represented on the council may be increased by the unanimous consent of the council and a majority of the assembly. Other powers have the right to sit as members of the council during the decision of matters in which they are especially interested.

"In the council, as in the assembly, each state will have only one vote. Both these bodies are to meet at stated intervals (the council at least once a year), and at other times if required; both can deal with any matter that is of international interest or that threatens the peace of the world; the decision of both must be unanimous, except in certain specified cases, matters of procedure, for instance, being decided by a majority voice.

"The league will have a permanent secretariat, under a secretary general. The secretariat and all other bodies under the league may include women, equally with men. A permanent court of international justice, and various permanent commissions and bureaus are also to be established.

"(3) The member states agree: (a) To reduce their armaments, plans for such reduction being suggested by the council, but only adopted with the consent of the states themselves, and thereafter not to increase them without the concurrence of the council; (b) to exchange full information of their existing armies and their naval and military programs; (c) to respect each other's territory and personal independence, and to guarantee them against foreign aggression; (d) to submit all international disputes either to arbitration or to inquiry by the council, which latter, however, may not pronounce an opinion on any dispute whose subject matter falls solely within a state's domestic jurisdiction; in no case to go to war till three months after an award, or a unanimous recommendation has been made, and even then not to go to war with a state which accepts the award or recommendation; (e) to regard a state which has broken the covenant as having committed an act of war against the league, to break off all economic and other relations with it, and to allow free passage through their territories to the troops of those states which are contributing armed force on behalf of the league.

"The council is to recommend what amount of force, if any, should be supplied by the several governments concerned, but the approval of the latter is necessary (states not members of the league will be invited to accept the obligations of the league for the purpose of particular disputes, and if they fail to comply may be forced); (f) not to consider any treaty binding till it has been communicated to the league, which will then proceed to publish it, to admit the right of the assembly to advise the reconsideration of treaties and international conditions which do not accord with present needs, and to be bound by no obligations inconsistent with the covenant.

"A state which breaks its agreements may be expelled from the league by the council.

"(4) The covenant does not affect the validity of international amendments, such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe doctrine, for securing the maintenance of peace.

"(5) The former German colonies and the territories of the Ottoman Empire are to be administered in the interests of civilization by states which are willing to be mandatories of the league, which will exercise a general supervision.

"(6) The member states accept certain responsibilities with regard to labor conditions, the treatment of natives, the white slave traffic, the opium traffic, the arms traffic with uncivilized and semicivilized countries, transit and trade conditions, public health and Red Cross societies.

"(7) The league is recognized as the central body interested in coordinating and assisting international activities generally.

"(8) Amendments to the covenant require the approval of all the states on the council and a simple majority of those in the assembly. States which signify their dissent from amendments thus approved are not bound by them, but, in this case, cease to be members of the league."

Business Report Not Encouraging.

Only five out of 22 principal industrial groups throughout the country reported a condition of general business prosperity in replies to a questionnaire sent to its 4400 members by the National Association of Manufacturers. A digest of the replies, issued by the association, showed that 16 out of the 22 groups into which its membership was divided reported business below 50 per cent. of normal pre-war conditions. The seventeenth, leather and leather manufacturers, reported trade about equally divided between fair and good.

In response to a request for suggestions to help general prosperity the replies enumerated a total of 11 obstacles lying in the path of a return to normal conditions. Michael J. Hickey, who prepared the digest for the association, placed the 11 in the following order of importance, estimated according to the relative emphasis laid upon them by the association members:

(1) Delay in signing the treaty of peace; (2) general high cost of labor and material; (3) sudden cessation of war-buying operations by the United States and foreign Governments; (4) hand-to-mouth buying by jobbers, retailers and consumers awaiting expected price reductions; (5) continued Government control, management and operation of railroads, etc.; (6) sudden imposition of heavy war revenue tax burdens on industries; (7) labor unrest, agitation and industrial strife; (8) high prices for wheat due to Government guarantee; (9) unemployment and poor distributions of labor forces released from naval or military service; (10) delay in settlement by Federal Government of claims for payment under informal war contracts; (11) partial shutting off of important European markets due to import trade embargoes by Great Britain, France and Italy.

The digest thus summarizes the opinions of the association members as to what is needed to promote national prosperity and a return to normal business conditions:

"Stop war-time extravagance; return the railroads and the wires to the owners; modify taxes on industry; let the Government bear the losses on wheat—the foundation of good prices; abolish war-period regulation agencies; let increased production justify high wages; have the Government pay its war bills; inaugurate public works, educate the public in the elements of economics."

The digest does not give a very optimistic outlook in respect to improved business conditions for this year. After remarking that the production of iron and steel is universally regarded in business circles as the most reliable trade barometer, it says that the replies from this industry show trade in a state of comparative lethargy, while 67 per cent. of the steel and iron manufacturing plants do not regard trade prospects for 1919 as bright. The widely spread belief that the cessation of war would bring a great volume of orders from the war-devastated countries of Europe receives little support.

The one notable exception in regard to this question was afforded by the brewing and distilling group, which, in the face of pending prohibition, bases its hope of disposing of its stocks on the foreign buyer.

One of the questions asked was whether retailers or jobbers were buying on an important scale. Brewers and distillers gave a 100 per cent. affirmative. The only other groups in which the affirmatives were above 50 per cent. were finished drugs, jewelry and silverware, musical instruments, tobacco and vehicles.

In respect to this latter feature the digest brought out the curious fact that there is a regular boom all over the country in phonographs, automobiles and jewelry, especially in the big industrial regions. Mr. Hickey, basing his opinion on letters received from the manufacturers, gave this explanation:

"The high wages paid during the war have started the workers on a regular orgy of spending. They are not saving their money but are indulging in all kinds of luxuries that they would hardly have thought about before the war. This is particularly true in the case of jewelry, phonographs and automobiles. Musical instrument makers and retailers everywhere report numberless instances of people wanting to buy phonographs with Liberty Bonds, and the same is true in regard to automobiles. They do not want cheap instruments, but the expensive mahogany-finished kind."

An overwhelming percentage of the members, 100 per cent. in seven groups and about 95 per cent. in the remainder, declared themselves in opposition to any form of Government ownership, and urged the return of the railroads to their private owners. Government regulation was approved in 80 per cent. of the total replies received.

The labor problem was dealt with in three questions:

"Do you favor or oppose a legally constituted national board for the adjudication of labor disputes?"

"Are you in favor of legislation imposing legal responsibility on trade unions?"

"Do you favor or oppose the repeal of the LaFollette seaman's act?"

The vote on the first question showed 64 per cent. in favor of a national adjudication board, but some important qualifications were made. The digest declares that the comments showed general dissatisfaction with the present National War Labor Board on the ground that it conceded too much to the labor side in disputes and that many manufacturers directly charged that the Board had "failed to be impartial, judicial or conciliatory."

The greatest unanimity shown on any question was in regard to the placing of statutory responsibility on trade unions for their contracts and the acts of their agents. Less than one-half of 1 per cent. of the replies were negative and the opposition was almost entirely based on a feeling of uncertainty as to what extent the manufacturers might be willing to deal with labor organizations outside of their plants.

The opposition to the repeal of the La Follette seamen's law was also very small, being less than 7 1-2 per cent.

Jury Failed To Agree.

The trial of the suit of Dr. Joseph I. Triplett, of Mount Jackson, Va., against Zachariah C. Magruder, of Frederick county, Md., to recover $4,690 and interest from July 26, 1917, on a note claimed to have been given by the defendant to the Montray Realty Company of New York city, and discounted by the plaintiff, began before a jury in the circuit court here on Wednesday of last week. The case was tried here last November, consuming three days, but the jury failed to agree.

In July, 1917, Mr. Magruder and his wife visited New York city as guests of the Montray Realty Company. They were entertained at one of the leading hotels, were shown the sights in and about the city and had a good time generally at the expense of the realty company. They were shown some unimproved property near New York city and the realty people claim Mr. Magruder agreed to buy a lot or two and signed a note for $4,690 in payment. Mr. Magruder, however, insists that he refused to sign the note and declares that the signature which purports to be his is a forgery.

Unable to agree, after having been out since noon on Friday, the jury was discharged Saturday morning.

In Memoriam.

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear son, Henry Keefer Lenhart, who departed this life February 9, 1919, in France.

I can never forget you, dear Keefer,
While in this world I stay,
As long as life and memory last
I will always think of you.

You are not forgotten, dear Keefer,
And never will you be,
Can we help but feel so lonely
When I part from the one I loved so dear.

By his loving mother,

ELIZABETH R. LENHART.

A BIT OF ADVICE

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. In such cases the kidneys often need help.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for kidney trouble — they are recommended by thousands. Can residents desire more convincing proof than the statement of a citizen of this locality?

J. W. Case, Gaithersburg, Md., says: "About 12 years ago I had a bad case of kidney trouble. My back hurt me and the secretions were very irregular in passage. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and tried them. They helped me greatly and I recommend them to other kidney sufferers."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Case had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Why Is The Dodge Bro. Car In Such Demand?

BECAUSE it is the car that is well worth the money, economizing car to run, less depreciation, as it has proven itself. You can ask any doughboy and he can tell you what it has done for Uncle Sam.

Now is the time to put in your order. If you put it off, you will have to wait.
