

15 CASES OF DIPHTHERIA IN THIS CITY.

Health Officer Ramsay Made Canvass of the Doctors this Morning.

DOCTORS IN CONTROL.

There have been Several Deaths, but Exact Number is Not Known—Dr. Ramsay Says Every Precaution is Being Taken and that the Disease will Not Spread.

There are but fifteen cases of diphtheria in this city at present, according to the statement made by Dr. W. E. Ramsay, the city health officer. There have been four or five deaths from the disease, the exact number is not known as all the certificates of deaths have not been filed. The doctors have the disease well in hand and there is no fear of an epidemic.

In almost every family great care is being taken with the children for fear they will get diphtheria. This morning, when Dr. Ramsay was seen by a News reporter he said he had heard the rumor about town that diphtheria was very bad, and he made a canvass of all the doctors this morning and found that there was a total of fifteen cases in the city with an average population of 21,000.

Dr. Ramsay said that as soon as a case was reported the place where it was would be fumigated as soon after as possible. The school room in No. 1 school in which Mazzie Brink studied, will be thoroughly fumigated at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, also the child's home at No. 171 Smith street.

Many little children have gone from school with headaches and the report has started that they had the disease. Parents are keeping their children home for fear of them getting it, but as all the doctors in town are on the watch for it, and they have it under control there is very little likelihood of it spreading. This is the time of the year for the disease when there is always more or less of it.

In New Brunswick thirty-five cases of diphtheria have been reported to the health officials. As the board of Health has only $34 left of this year's appropriation and as the new appropriation will not be available until next May the city is unable to help suppress the spread of the disease. Popular subscriptions therefore may be sought.

Tearing Down the Posters.

This morning Officer William McDermott tore down all the football posters on Smith street. The posters were put up last night and are being taken down because of the disfigurement caused by placing them on the fences and trees.

LARGEST IRON STACKS AT THE CHEESEBOROUGH

Being Put up Today—Work on the Buildings Progressing Rapidly.

Yesterday two of the largest iron stacks on any factory building in this city were put up at the Cheeseborough Vaseline Company's plant by Thomas Redding's men.

The work at the plant is progressing rapidly and another month will see the work about completed, or sufficiently so that work in all departments can be commenced.

Many of the firm's mechanics from Brooklyn are now at the local plant. Boxes and drums of vaseline are arriving at the works every day. The girls, who are employed in the bottling department, will be kept busy right along from now on. During the removal from Brooklyn to this city, the work of putting vaseline on the market will be continued without interruption.

WORK ON DRAWBRIDGE MAY BE HELD OVER.

Likely to Wait Until Spring for Completing the Structure—Weight Still on Foundation.

The prospects are now that the new Raritan river bridge will not be completed this winter as it was first expected. The engineer in charge is not entirely satisfied with the test of the center pier.

Everything seemed to be going along very nicely until a short time ago it was thought the foundation was sinking just a little. The pig iron is still on the draw and it will be kept there for some time yet.

As soon as the cold weather commences the iron workers will find it impossible to work out on the foundation and the work will have to be laid over until the warmer days come, this will bring the rest of the work about the middle of April before it can again be started and it will be probably next summer some time before the work is completed.

The following dispatch from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., which appeared in this morning's papers and the hurry to fill stock yards at South Plainfield which started yesterday, may have some significance:

SPORTSMEN RETURN WITH THEIR GAME.

Result of the First Few Days Gunning Shows Rabbits are Plentiful.

COME FROM ALL PARTS.

Local Gunners Scattered Throughout the State After the Cotten Tails—Many Bring Home Quails and Squirrels—Those Gunning in this Vicinity had Good Results.

The hunters who went out in the early part of the week are now beginning to return home with their spoils. Some were lucky, others got only a few and still others—well, they claim they did not buy them, anyway. One hunter, who has been out for three days and returned this morning, with a few rabbits, told a News reporter that the game during the first day's hunting where he was, near Landsdown, was very good, but that the next two days, hardly a rabbit could be found, and not a squirrel or quail would show itself.

Few serious accidents are reported to any from this city, although one man received a slight wound over the right eye, the result of careless shooting on the part of his comrade.

A party from this city, who were at Landsdown Tuesday and returned home last night, witnessed the killing of a hunter and the misfortune of another in losing his right arm.

The following hunters have returned home and the result of their trip are given as told by themselves: Math Hanson, Soren Clemons, Toms Tunison and Paul Martinussen. They were at Flemington and in all got thirty rabbits and a few quail.

Thomas and George Eggers, who were at Hightstown, brought in thirty-five rabbits and a few squirrels. Joseph Flizen and John Kanson were out in the woods between here and Woodbridge and they got nearly twenty rabbits and a few squirrels. John Smith and Peter Kroeger got four rabbits and one squirrel. August Kroeger, Matt Weirup and James F. Burns were at Bonhamtown. They bagged six rabbits. Charles Peterson and Joseph Fox were also at Bonhamtown. They got fourteen rabbits and a few quail.

Albert Bollschweiler John Johnson August Ulmer, Mr. Smith and Martin Bartos were at Flemington and brought back a dozen rabbits some quail and squirrels. John McMurray and Fred Hermann got eleven rabbits out of the woods at Bonhamtown. Joseph Brown, of Oak street, got twenty-one rabbits and a quail at Flemington. William VanPelt, A. Segune and James Beadle were at Bonhamtown where they got eighteen cotton tails and a few quail. Some members of the Danish Sociable A. C. got about twenty rabbits between here and Woodbridge. Peter VanSickle and two friends brought in thirty-five rabbits from Bonhamtown. At Landsdown John Finlon got twenty. Nat Ward seventeen, and William Cleary eighteen rabbits. Thomas Wilhelm and William Koch got about forty rabbits near the Koch farm. Fred Martin and John Hartung got four rabbits and four quail at Toms River. Many more hunters will return home today with reports of what they have done and seen.

Jack Redden, an umbrella man, who gave his residence as Newark, was arrested last night by officer McDermott on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. The recorder asked the amount of money he had in his pockets and upon being told eighty cents, dismissed the man with the advice to use 5 cents to get out of town as rapidly as possible.

Nitro-Glycerine has Disappeared but Authorities Refuse to Say Where it Went.

The four cases of nitro-glycerine, of 50 pounds each, which were brought to the Central railroad freight office a few days ago, and which they refused to ship away after they were at the depot, had disappeared this morning.

A News reporter, who went to the freight house, was told that the stuff had been removed, but whether J. H. Gregory, who took it there, took it back, or whether it was shipped, the authorities refused to say.

An effort to see Mr. Gregory failed. At any rate the stuff is no longer at the freight station and the employees feel greatly relieved.
