An Important Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The bill introduced in the House by Mr. Manning, of Mississippi, to reorganize the Supreme Court of the United States, is regarded as one of the most important offered at this session. The general impression is that the bill will be adopted. The over crowded condition of the Supreme Court calendar, there being now over eleven hundred cases undisposed of, making a delay of about five years in litigated cases, has secured many friends for the bill inside and out of Congress. The new bill, if it should become a law, will enable the court to dispatch thrice the amount of work now performed by it, and will prove of vast benefit to those having cases before that body. Mr. Manning's bill provides that there shall be three divisions of the court in session at the same time for an early and prompt hearing of cases and renditions of decisions, and its object is to clear the calendar which is years in arrears, and to prevent the accumulation of cases in future. The business of the Supreme Court has become so great that it would be utterly impossible for it to be cleared off under the present organization and with the growth of the country and consequent increase of cases brought before the court, matters are growing worse year by year.

The Interoceanic Ship Canal.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The select committee of the House on the interoceanic ship canal held another meeting yesterday, and discussed the subject of our treaty relations as affecting the project of a ship canal. Ernest Diehman, United States Minister to the United States of Colombia, appeared before the committee and explained the "Wyse contract," upon which the De Lesseps project is based. Mr. Diehman pointed out the objections to a canal constructed under the De Lesseps contract, and gave several reasons why the project should be discouraged by the United States. The unsatisfactory conditions and speculative features of the instrument, and the fact that it was a mere contract or understanding between the Colombian Government and a private company would militate against the success of the enterprise. From its proximity and the undoubted fact that the commerce of the United States would contribute a large share of the toils of an interoceanic canal, it is but natural to assume that eventually the United States Government would have to assume the guarantees for its security against domestic and foreign dangers. For these reasons Mr. Diehman believed this Government should have a first voice in determining the conditions under which the work should be undertaken and should have that control over its management and use which is demanded by the commercial and political interests of our country. Another grave objection mentioned by Mr. Diehman to the De Lesseps project was the disadvantage to the United States if the management of the interoceanic canal should be in the hands of a European company, for the reason that all differences arising between such a company and the shipping using the canal would have to be adjudicated either by the courts in Bogota or by courts in Europe, and in either case the difficulties arising from distance alone would work a practical denial of justice to American shipowners or masters.
Admiral Ammon also came before the committee and rehearsed the features of the Nicaragua routes, which he illustrated by charts and drawings, and advocated them as in the main superior to the claims of any other route yet proposed. Admiral Ammon strongly favored the Nicaragua in prefence to the Panama route, believing the latter to be open to the objection that the prevalence of floods in the low country would continually endanger the canal and entail a great expense in keeping it in proper condition.

As Seen by an Eye-Witness.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Lieutenant Thomas Garvey, U. S. A., who has just returned from Ireland, where he has been on a visit to his mother and relatives, was interviewed to-night by a Post reporter. He describes the sufferings and destitution as ever exceeding the published accounts, and says that Ireland is in a very unsettled state. The people have become indifferent through oppression and exhibit an unconcerned, crushed feeling that bodes no good. He predicts that the sufferings must last at least six months longer, until the next crops, and says that every cent which can be raised is needed. He also states that when the landlords commence a general "eviction" the people will resist and serious trouble ensue.

Forty Years a Counterfeiter—The Criminal Captured at Last.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Treasury department has received information of the arrest near Jackson, Miss., of David Finn for manufacturing and dealing in counterfeit gold and silver. He admits having manufactured counterfeit money at intervals for the past 40 years. Russell Hollis, alias W. Stanley, was arrested at Greenville, Miss., a few weeks ago, with about $400 in counterfeit $10 gold pieces and $200 in counterfeit silver pieces, which Finn confessed to have manufactured and sold to Hollis. James G. Parker, another customer of Finn's, has also been arrested at Mobile, Ala., for passing some of the base money.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

The sub-committee of the Committee on Agriculture, to whom was referred the bill the Commissioner of Agriculture a departmental officer of the Government, and thereby a member of the Cabinet, will report favorably on the same at an early day. A similar measure is being advocated by Mr. Bayard in the Senate.

The Smithsonian Institute has received from Foerster of Berlin announcement of the discovery by M. Palisa at Pola on the 6th of February, 1880, of a planet of the 17th magnitude in 10 hours 25 minutes of right ascension, and 8 degrees 31 minutes of north declination with a daily motion of 6 minutes north.

The Sherman-Boynton controversy is likely to bring other parties to the front. It is understood that General Babcock, whose letters to General Boynton were published by the latter in the Cincinnati Gazette on the 9th on January last, claims that said letters were confidential communications, and he had written assurances from General Boynton that they should be so considered. Exactly what course General Babcock will take in the matter has not yet transpired.

The Lucan Butchery—Origin of the Vigilance Committee—Formed Under the Parish Priest's Advice—More Arrests.

LUCAN, [Ont., Feb. 8.—Two more important arrests were made last evening. Father Connolly says he expects William Donnelly, the surviving son, will lay information against him and have him arrested. The priest often denounced William, who swore to be revenged. Father Connolly says he himself advised the formation of a vigilance committee among the farmers, and laid down rules for their guidance. The magistrates were wholly unable to protect the life and property of settlers, and he suggested a vigilance committee to trace up stolen property and guard the barns and outhouses which the Donnellys were in the habit of entering. Members of this committee took an oath to be faithful in the discharge of their self-imposed duty, but pledged themselves not to break the law or do wanton injury of any kind to the Donnellys. Two months ago the younger members of this body seceded and formed a separate organization, on the ground that the elder men were not active enough. Father Connolly knew nothing of this new society further than that it existed, but he often warned its members to keep well within the law in all that they did. They held meetings every week, their proceedings being regulated by a special committee of thirteen, eleven of whom are now under arrest. All were pledged by solemn oaths not to reveal the secrets of their order. The principal oath was as follows:

I, ——, do solemnly swear before Almighty God and on these holy evangelists never to divulge the business that may be discussed or transacted by the Biddulph Vigilance Committee, and in case I should be arrested for taking part in said business I hereby declare, in presence of God, that I will not reveal the names of my associates, even though I should be sent to the gallows for refusing to do so.

The information on which the police are acting is that supplied them by Connors, the boy who hid under the bed while the inmates of old Donnelly's house were being murdered. The prisoners all declare they will hang rather than turn Queen's evidence, and so far the case against them is extremely slight. William Donnelly says he intends to rebuild his father's homestead and live in it, just to show the regulators that he is not afraid of them, but his sister wants him to go to the United States. Mrs. Donnelly was a sister of Martin Kehoe, a Molly Maguire, who was hanged some time ago at Mauch Chunk, Pa.

A Trapper Murdered—The Body Exposed to Dogs and Wolves.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—It is reported here that a fur trader murdered his partner in the early part of the winter, in the pine forest 150 miles north of this city, and that the body of the victim was left in the shanty unguarded, for weeks, exposed to the voracity of dogs and wolves. The coroner has left this city for the scene of the crime, with Indian guides on snow shoes, to ferret out the facts connected with the homicide, and institute proceedings and bring the culprit to justice. It is intended to remove the remains to this city, if any are found.

A Wonderful Freak of Nature.

QUEBEC, Feb. 8.—A little girl aged five years died recently at St. Clair, Dorchester. An autopsy was made, and a fully developed fœtus taken from the body. It is much malformed. The cause of the phenomenon is that at her birth there were two fœtuses. One developed the other. The one which developed the other was the girl deceased, and the other was this fœtus. It must be about ten inches long, it having grown with the growth of the child.

A Schooner Collides With a Steamer.

NEWPORT, Feb. 8.—The schooner Red Jacket, Captain Ginn, of Rockland, collided last evening with the steamer Eolus, Captain Russell, plying between this port and Wickford and connecting with the Shore Line train. The collision occurred near the Goat Island lighthouse. The crash of the two vessels coming together and the sound of escaping steam could be plainly heard on shore. The revenue cutter, Samuel Dexter, went at once to the rescue. The Eolus is badly damaged. Her bows and the joiner work clear to the boiler are gone, the schooner's bowsprit going through her, tearing away all the steam connsections. The boat was filled with steam, which created consternation among the passengers. The saloons were soon filled with steam, but the coolness of the officers allayed all fears, and they assured the passengers that there was no immediate danger. The schooner let her anchors go after the accident and held the steamer which was at the mercy of the waves. The passengers, many of whom were ladies, were taken off in sailboats and were landed at Newport. Nearly all the passengers were from New York.

Lust and Murder—A Young Man's Terrible Crime—He Outrages and Then Shoots His Aunt.

MANCHESTER, Feb. 8.—In the neighboring town of Londonderry, eleven miles from this city, on Old Monmouth road, a most horrible crime was enacted yesterday afternoon. Frank Dillingham, aged 20 years, outraged and shot his aunt, Sarah Dillingham, and then attempted his own life by shooting, but failing went to a neighboring store and gave himself up. The murderer comes from Lowell, Mass., and went to work in April last for E. V. Dillingham, husband of the woman, who is also the boy's uncle. He proved to be a wilful and stubborn fellow, and it was only by much urging that any considerable work could be got out of him. No serious trouble occurred between him and his employer, however, and on Saturday morning Mr. Dillingham left home to transact some business in Manchester and was absent all day, leaving the hired boy and his wife at home alone. Some two hours before his return the neighbors were made aware of what had taken place, the first information being conveyed by the perpetrator of the crime himself. Immediately upon the young man giving himself up and making known what devilish work he had been engaged in, he was secured and several men entered the house, finding Mrs. Dillingham stretched on the floor in the front room, her head lying in a pool of blood, while her clothing was in such a condition as to tend to the conclusion that she had been outraged. A rope was drawn tightly across her neck, so that when it was removed it left a large belt of discoloration. Life still existed, its hold freely, however, and up to two o'clock this afternoon she remains in the same unconscious condition, but it is thought she cannot live long. The ball entered near the right ear, and came out on the other side of the head near the temple. The outrager shot himself near the left temple, but his recovery is almost certain. He has been given over to the custody of the sheriff, William Clarke, who has taken him to some unknown place for fear that the terribly incensed people would take measures to lynch him, as was bitterly and loudly threatened. He has a mother living in Lowell, but the whereabouts of his father is unknown. Dillingham is 23 years old, a daughter of the late Perley Wallace, and has been married eight years. Young Dillingham will be arraigned for his horrible crime early the present week. He manifests no remorse for what he has done and seems to await future events without fear. The only motive that can be assigned for the deed is the desire of the prisoner to gratify his lust.

Verdict For a Connecticut Company.

TOLEDO, Feb. 8.—The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance cases came up Friday before a justice in the shape of a suit to get possession of certain property. The insurance company obtained a decree last June in the United States Court, under which the property was sold and bid in by the company, but the defendant declined to give possession. The defense made was that the company was doing a banking business, which it had no right to under Ohio law, by loaning money on real estate, and that, while the decree of sale might have been properly obtained, the company had no right to bid on the property. The justice held that in cases of this kind it was competent for the court to inquire into or decide as to the title of property. Verdict was given for the plaintiff. Exceptions were taken by the defendant, and it is proposed to take the case to the higher courts. These suits are attracting a great deal of attention, as large amounts which have been loaned by this and other Eastern insurance companies in this State are involved.
