Hawley a committee to secure the compilation and publication of a complete record of the proceedings of Battle Flag Day, together with historical sketches of all the State military organizations which were engaged in service during the war, the expense not to exceed $500, and a copy of the said record be appended to the Adjutant General's report for 1880.

CALENDAR.

Regular calendar busines was taken up, and the bill authorizing the Shore Line Railroad Company to issue bonds, the amount not to exceed $300,000, six per cent interest, was passed. The act authorizing a special charter for the Peck, Stow & Wilcox Co. was reported favorably by the Incorporations Committee, Mr. Mitchell chairman, and was passed.

The act relating to the jurisdiction of the Court of Common Pleas for Fairfield county was reported favorably by the Judiciary Committee, explained by Mr. Stanton as being cumbrous and impracticable, and rejected.

WINDHAM COUNTY COURTS.

The bill in regard to the holding of courts in Windham county was reported unfavorably by the Judiciary Committee. Mr. Stanton explained that the parties interested had appeared before the committee and had expressed a willingness to adjust the matter between themselves, and so save the State the necessity of interfering. They wished the bill, which had come over from the session of 1879, being House bills Nos. 104 and 256, continued till the next General Assembly. This disposition was made of them.

SPECIFIC APPROPRIATIONS.

House bill No. 328, from the session of 1879, was reported unfavorably by the Committee on Judiciary. Mr. Stanton stated that the committee had carefully considered the measure and did not think it for the public interests to have it passed. Its aim was to restrict the expenditures of the State in the same manner that Congressional expenditures are restricted. On vote the bill was rejected.

TEXT BOOKS FOR SCHOOLS.

House bill No. 16, concerning text books for schools, was reported unfavorably by the Committee on Education. Mr. Colyer, chairman of the committee, said the bill was considered undesirable. On vote it was rejected.

THE GROTON CENTENNIAL.

Mr. Crump, of New London, called from the table the House joint resolution appropriating $3,000 for the centennial celebration of Groton Heights.

Mr. Stanton stated that several members of the House were absent who desired to speak on the resolution, and he hoped the gentleman from New London would not press its consideration to-day.

Mr. Crump said he had no wish to press the measure unless all members of the House were present who cared to discuss it, and would withdraw the motion. The bill was then continued on the table.

Adjourned to Tuesday at 12 m.

Committee Cases.

The case of Bliss et al. vs. Wolfe was partly argued before the committee yesterday. The case involves the real and personal property of the Home Woolen Company at Beacon Falls, which cost about $800,000. There were two mortgages upon the property, one of about $75,000 and a second of $105,000. This latter was foreclosed and General John Wolfe was placed in possession. The holder of the first mortgage afterward foreclosed and hired General Wolfe to take charge of the mill for $2,400 a year. Something like $80 a month was spent for watchmen to look out for the property while the machinery was idle. The first mortgagee obtained a decree and deeded one-quarter of the property to Wolfe, and Wolfe deeded him three-quarters of the whole. Soon after this had been consummated, Bliss & Allen, merchants of New York, turned up with a judgment against the owners for $34,000 and over, about which the defendants knew nothing, as they claim. General Wolfe was in possession and refused to acknowledge the validity of the judgment. Bliss & Allen then sued him and his partner each to recover $50,000 damages, alleging that they had conspired to defraud them. This is the case now on trial before Judge Hall, of Bridgeport, and Louis H. Bristol, of this city, as committee of the Bridgeport court.

The Farmers' Club.

A Paper By Dr. Rose on Glanders and Farcy in Horses.

The New Haven County Farmers' Club held a meeting in Sheffield Hall yesterday afternoon, the president, J. J. Webb, in the chair.

The president, at the opening, stated that it had been expected that Dr. O'Sullivan would read a paper on "Glanders and Farcy in Horses." He received word at a late hour that Dr. O'Sullivan had gone to Springfield, Mass., to attend to the practice of a veterinary surgeon who had engagements with the State Board of Agriculture and that he would be absent for a month or two. He saw Dr. Rose, the partner of Dr. O'Sullivan, at 11 o'clock, and he very kindly consented to read a brief paper on the same subject. President Webb then announced that at the next meeting a paper would be read by J. M. Hubbard, of Middletown, on "Farm Improvements."

Dr. Rose was then introduced. He said that glanders and farcy in horses dates back to Aristotle. It is a malignant, fatal disease, the whole system being affected by poison. It hardly ever affects horses in cold or hot climates, but only in temperate climates. This disease is more generally seen in ill-ventilated stables. Glanders may be induced by the introduction of foreign matter and bad ventilation. The most common form of this disease is diabetes. The disease will spread by inoculation of the virus. It has been produced by transfusion of blood. In notes of the London College we have two cases of young men being affected by the disease by dissecting a horse affected thereby. The doctor then described acute glanders, which he said almost always proved fatal. The swelling under the jaw and the discharge from the nostrils were sure indications of the disease. In the chronic form we have the discharge from one or both nostrils, and the discharge mixed with a little blood gives us the premonitory symptoms of the disease. The horse eats well, the skin is dry and harsh, and as the disease advances the symptoms previously spoken of become more apparent. In acute glanders the symptoms appear suddenly. The difference between glanders and farcy is as to the location of the disease. As to the prevention of glanders, beside the killing of the animal, the stable should be thoroughly disinfected and cleansed, and then food should be given well salted, and chloride of potash should be used freely. Dr. Rose described a case of farcy he had in this city a day or two since, followed by symptoms of glanders. He ordered the horse killed, and presumed that it had been done. In closing the doctor said he had only been informed at 11 o'clock this forenoon that Dr. O'Sullivan would not be present, and a request made that he should read a paper. He hoped, therefore, that the club would excuse its brevity.

Mr. T. S. Gold, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, asked what diseases most resembled glanders. The doctor replied that chronic catarrh and ulceration of the teeth were sometimes taken for glanders. He said that chronic catarrh might run into glanders if the surroundings of the animal and coming into contact with noxious vapors. There was very little danger, however, of glanders following chronic catarrh. He said it was now admitted that glanders could arise spontaneously in animals. He thought, however, that horses frequently took glanders from drinking from watering troughs where horses affected with the disease had previously drank. The doctor said he had known of twenty or twenty-five cases of glanders in this city during his residence here. He supposed that they had been killed, as those were his orders, invariably. The virus of farcy is not charged with that degree of poison that glanders is.

In reply to Mr. Gold, the doctor said that it was not necessary that healthy horses in the same stable with a glandered horse should take the disease unless they came in contact with the virus.

In reply to Mr. C. B. Foote, the doctor said that no cases are known of a man taking glanders from the breath of the horse. In cases where men have had it it has been by being inoculated with the virus. The symptoms of the disease in man are the same as in the horse, only more lingering.

To Mr. Gold—There is no case on record where glanders once seated has ever been cured. Therefore, if horses said to have the glanders get well, I should say it was not a case of glanders.

President Webb stated that he had had some correspondence with Mr. Olcott, the agricultural editor of the Hartford Courant, who had promised to read a paper at some future time. Mr. Webb thought he would read a paper sometime in March. He also said that he presumed Dr. Rose would read another paper at the next meeting in May. He suggested that a subject be named so that the doctor could have time to prepare himself. A gentleman suggested "Tuberculosis" as the subject, and this was agreed upon.

President Webb suggested that more attention should be paid to the question box. There were a great many questions that were arising every day among farmers that they could not answer themselves, and if they would put their questions on paper and drop them in the box they would be answered by some one.

Mr. Crofut, of Derby, presented a model for a stable floor, which was conceded to be an improvement over old methods. Adjourned.

A Wonderful Cure.

A Lady Rescued from a Living Grave. Saved as by Fire. Graphic Description. Elixir of Sulphur. Its Good Qualities and Good Works.

Correspondence of New Haven Sunday Union.

WINDSOR LOCKS, CONN., Jan. 23d, 1880.

To the Editor of THE NEW HAVEN UNION.

It is not very often that we witness the raising of a person from the grave, but we have had in this quiet town, what seems almost a miracle.

Some two or three years ago Miss Martha Chandler, a much respected and well connected lady living here, attended a camp meeting held at Northampton. She contracted a hard cold and was taken with a severe attack of bleeding at the lungs, which as you well know is very dangerous. Several weeks ensued before she could be moved to her home, and from that time she gradually failed, and in less than twelve months she was hopelessly sick with that dread monster consumption. During the few months that followed she had frequent bleeding spells, until they were thirty times in number, increasing in pain and severity in each case. Last Spring she took to her bed, never expecting to leave it alive, as her mouth and throat were very sore, and it was with difficulty that she could swallow even liquid, much less solid food; it was simply torture and she grew to be a mere shadow, with a distressing cough and no appetite.

At this time there appeared on the scene a visitor who told wonderful stories in regard to a medicine that would surely cure her, saying that the gentleman that made it was a modest druggist in Holyoke, Massachusetts, by the name of Arthur. She had been given up by physicians, and also tried so many so-called "Sure Cures" that she was almost incredulous, but consented to try it, hoping for the best. The first bottle she used helped her so much that she procured more, and finally, to make a long story short, after using twelve bottles she is to-day a well woman, and astonishes her neighbors by visiting them as of old. They look upon her as one almost risen from the dead and the whole town are talking about it with wonder. Now these are simple facts that occurred so publicly that I deem it a matter of public justice to make a note of it. The medicine, I almost forgot to say, is called "Arthur's Elixir of Sulphur," and from a careful investigation in this case, and incidentally many others, I am led to acknowledge it is a wonderful remedy in all cases of chronic colds, bronchitis, catarrh, consumption, whooping cough and diphtheria. The making of an Elixir is a difficult matter with sulphur, which is next to impossible, as is also a perfect antidote. I feel certain that the chemists of centuries have endeavored to produce one, but it was left for this man Arthur, a druggist in Holyoke of twenty years standing to bring it about.

To relieve your mind of the suspicion that I am in the pay of this firm I would simply say I am not, and would say that any one desiring to investigate this case further, can write to Miss Chandler herself, or to our worthy druggist, Mr. J. W. Browning, who will gladly answer any questions in regard to the case.

More anon,
