

Why Name a Trust Company Executor of Your Will

The handling of estates is a business in itself. It is peculiarly the business of a modern trust company.

Loss to estates managed by an individual executor happens generally through inexperience. As executor of your Will this reliable Company will bring to the handling of your estate the fruits of over thirty years' experience. Administration charges are fixed by law and are low.

CIRCUIT COURT PROCEEDINGS

The Circuit Court convened for the May term on Monday, May 26th, with Hon. L. Burgett Des Voignes, presiding.

In view of the fact that so many jurors asked to be excused this term on account of the condition of their farm work, because of rains, cold weather, etc., the Court found that all of the criminal cases having entered a plea of "guilty" and there being no necessity of calling a jury for criminal cases, it was concluded not to call a jury for this term, and therefore the time will be devoted to law and chancery cases.

The criminal cases were disposed of as follows:—

People vs. Carl Youells, charged with abandonment, entered a plea of guilty. The Court ordered that he file a bond in the sum of $300.00 conditioned to pay to his wife the sum of $4.00 per week for her support until the further order of the Court. The bond was filed.

People vs. Bennie Eckert—charged with indecent assault, entered a plea of guilty. On Tuesday the Court sentenced the prisoner to the Ionia Reformatory for the period of not less than nine months nor more than five years.

People vs. George Burkhardt, Jr.—charged with forgery, entered a plea of guilty. On Tuesday the Court sentenced the prisoner to the Ionia Reformatory for a period of not less than eighteen months, nor more than fourteen years.

The case of The People vs. Arthur Robinson and Howard Robinson, charged with Violation of Liquor Law was dismissed on the request of Prosecuting Attorney, and they were re-arrested on the same charge. The dismissal was due to a jurisdictional question.

Catarrah for Twenty Years

Mrs. M. S. Davis, 1607 10th Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"After having been a constant sufferer from catarrah for more than twenty years and after trying almost every remedy advertised, and having lost all hope, I very reluctantly began the use of Peruna about two years ago. Everybody says I look younger now than I did twenty years ago, and I actually feel younger and better, and weigh more. I am recommending it to my neighbors and all with whom I come in contact."

These troubles have become. A great deal of publicity has already been given the matter. I am planning an article in the Michigan Farmer, besides the regular college publicity work.

It will not be safe, of course, to call all cases of stunted wheat, "Take-all." It is necessary to eliminate the stunting caused by water-logged soil, frost injury, etc. "Flag-smut" with its black streaks along the leaves is readily recognized. I am planning to have inspected all fields that are suspicious. I trust that you will call the attention of the department to all fields showing this characteristic appearance. The situation is critical and we are seeking rapidly to assemble the information which will govern the control measures to be supplied. If the disease is at present limited in distribution, a simple quarantine will be effective. It is only by careful survey that we can get these facts.

I have never seen a more destructive disease than "Take-all." Around St. Louis I saw fields of eighty acres rendered practically worthless, not only for this year's crop, but for all future wheat, barley, rye, and possibly oat crops. We were taken through an area of approximately two townships in which the disease was very wide-spread. We don't want this disease to get a foot-hold in Michigan. Already two suspicious cases have been brought to the attention of the Department. While examination in the field is necessary, I feel that the situation is serious. The descriptions sent with the specimens sound like Take-all.

Counting on you for fullest co-operation, as in our past work,

G. H. Coons.

I was there to make a sketch of her. Luncheon was just over, and she was talking to a little knot of women. The first words I heard, I said quietly into a nearby seat, were: "National Biscuit." recalling pleasantly my own tasty Uneeda Lunch-son. I liked her, and she spoke again, my pen and paper in my hand, and I wrote: "National Biscuit." For the tiny toddlers there is a varied menu, sometimes Uneeda Biscuit and milk, sometimes Graham Crackers, Oatmeal Crackers or Lunch Biscuits. This is changed on special occasions to Old Time Sugar Cookies, Newtons and, rarest of all, there are days when we had ice cream and Nabisco, and those were our party days.

Uneeda Biscuit is just a little more than a biscuit. It is all, and made us sure they were coming every day—for both know we must feed children, as we must feed ourselves. After their meals, they are always like a child, ready to go up in bed. They are always dainty, always happy, and always dainty. You see, even little children are always dainty, always happy, and always dainty. They are most lovable and most tractable after they've had something to eat. National Biscuit up we never missed the Child-dainties always begin our Child-dren's Hour with its tasty feast.
