Air castles often fall to the ground for the want of a solid foundation. They probably would have retained their shape if they had had something substantial to rest upon—a bank account. Are you going to let your fall for the want of a foundation, or are you going to open a Savings Account to-day and build a foundation that will withstand whatever stress that is placed upon it. Our 3 per cent interest will help to strengthen it. FARMERS' BANKING AND TRUST COMPANY, Rockville, Md.

Rev. James Battle Avirett was for many years rector of Silver Spring parish, and during the stay of the family there Mrs. Avirett made many friends throughout this county. She was highly regarded by those who knew her, and the announcement of her death was the cause of widespread sorrow.

Aged Man Is Slain.

George Mason, 74 years old, an inmate of the Home for the Aged, at Blue Plains, D. C., yesterday afternoon shot and killed Martin McCrossin, 64 years old, another inmate of the same institution. McCrossin fell to the floor unconscious after the shot had been fired, and was hurried to the Washington Asylum Hospital, but he was beyond medical relief, and died at 7:30 o'clock last night.

Mason is locked up at the Fifth precinct police station, charged with murder. He says the shooting was accidental. Edward Gant, 78 years old, the only witness to the killing, says Mason drew a revolver from a hip pocket, and, taking deliberate aim, fired. The ball entered the body about three inches above the heart.

Several statements have been made as to the motive, but little credence is placed in any of them by the police. It is alleged that Mason fired the fatal shot in a fit of anger, and he was seated in his cell in the Fifth precinct police station last night, he hardly knew what he was doing when he pulled the revolver.

The shooting occurred about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. McCrossin was in charge of a dormitory, in which slept twenty of the inmates. He was seated in a rocking chair looking out of a window when Mason entered the room. Mason went toward his bed, and was in the act of lying down when McCrossin called to him and told him not to go to sleep on the bed, as there is a rule in the home forbidding the inmates to use the beds in the daytime.

Mason, it is said, refused to comply with McCrossin's order. He soon fell asleep, and had been sleeping half an hour when McCrossin walked over to the bed, and awakening Mason, demanded that he get up. Gant, who had just entered the room, endeavored to calm the two men.

Realizing that he would be reported for disregarding the rules of the institution, Mason arose from the bed, and, according to information of the police, struck at McCrossin. McCrossin resisted this, and a fight followed, during which the fatal shot was fired.

McCrossin was standing near the door when Mason drew the revolver. The old man attempted to dodge, but Mason was too quick, and pulled the trigger.

McCrossin fell to the floor with a groan. Gant called to several attendants, who had heard the shot, and these rushed into the room. Two of them took charge of McCrossin, while another placed Mason under arrest.

A wagon from the institution took the wounded man to the Washington Asylum Hospital, where physicians immediately began to probe for the bullet. He died without regaining consciousness.

The two old men had been friends for seven years, having entered the institution about the same time. McCrossin was formerly a Montgomery county, Md., farmer, but circumstances had forced him to enter the home, where he first met Mason.

Mason, it was learned last night, was formerly a prosperous patent attorney of this city. It is said that at one time he handled a number of celebrated cases.—Washington Post of Friday.

Masonic Banquet.

The Masons of the Rockville lodge gave a reception and banquet at the Town Hall last Tuesday night in celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of Montgomery Lodge, No. 195, A. F. and A. M. It was one of the most enjoyable occasions held in Rockville for some time, and a large number of persons accepted the invitations extended to them. From 7:30 to 8:30 P. M., a reception was held in the lodge room, where the guests enjoyed themselves socially and were presented to Mr. Clifford K. Berryman, of the Evening Star of Washington City, who were the honored guests of the evening. At 8:30 the members and invited guests adjourned to the Town Hall for the banquet.

Mr. P. Allen, as toastmaster, called the assembly to order, and Rev. Thomas J. Peckard offered thanks to the Supreme Architect for the bountiful repast. At the table of honor were Mr. James F. Allen, toastmaster; Mr. Clifford K. Berryman, cartoonist; Mr. Henry S. Seiden, monologist; and Dr. George E. Lewis, the present Master of the lodge.

Mr. Allen began his remarks with a history of the lodge. Fifteen years ago, he said, through the efforts of Mr. Samuel E. Eastburn the present lodge of Masons was organized with 35 members and it now numbers 102 members in good standing.

Mr. Clifford K. Berryman was then introduced. Mr. Berryman gave his very interesting talk, with pictures in crayon of different political subjects, showing the change that a few strokes of the crayon would make. He first drew the head of James B. Hill, of New York, as the man who wanted to be Vice President, and with two or three additional strokes changed the face to be the present Vice-President. He also started with the face of an infant, and with the addition of lines and curves carried it through childhood to the old man with pipe and skullcap.

This drawing of Teddy R. he said, needs a companion picture with the drawing of the Teddy bear. After drawing the bear, he told the story of overhearing the remarks of two men at a railroad station one day. They were looking at a cartoon in the Star and one of them remarked: "It's a funny thing that this man Berryman ever since the President entertained Booker Washington puts a cow in his pictures."

Mr. Henry S. Seiden was then introduced, and gave a very entertaining hour of monologue in the dialect of French, German, Italian, Hebrew, and the Bowery.

An orchestra furnished music throughout the evening, and the banquet was prepared by a special caterer.

The committee having the affair in charge were Messrs. Robert G. Hilton, chairman, Roger Shaw, W. R. Humphrey, Jr., Winfield Beck, George L. Edmunds, George P. Henderson and Wilson Ward.

The Masons of Rockville need to be congratulated on the successful manner in which the committee did its work.

Brownsville Items.

The King's Valley school house, Miss Bonnie Day teacher, went up in smoke on Saturday night last. It is supposed that the house was set on fire, as there had been no fire in the stove since Friday afternoon at the close of the school.

Mrs. Martha Furden, residing with her son-in-law, Mr. E. M. Linticum, is quite sick.

Mr. Edward Davis and wife have moved to Fountain Mills neighborhood, where they will make their future home.

It is a fact that Insurance Companies throughout the country will give you a lower rate where you use Carpenter-Morton Roofing than where you use shingles, tin or iron. Besides it is less expensive and more durable. C. H. Hokin, of this city, is exclusive agent and is selling the roofing under a guarantee that it will last for years.

Governor Proud of New Law.

In speaking of the Corrupt Practices act and its effect, Governor Crothers says: "I tell you that it is the best law for the whole State that has been placed on the statute books in many a year. It means even more to the people than the Good Roads law, and the fact that this was the first election in Maryland for two years that has been free from bribery and corruption shows what it has done and will do. It will purify politics in this State."

"The law is a good one now, but it can be made better. We have not gotten right down to the real basis yet. I will favor next year certain amendments to the law which will make it impossible to spend a dollar which will even directly affect a vote. The law as it stands today makes it impossible to spend money directly to influence votes, but it should be so amended as to make it impossible to spend a dollar that will indirectly influence them."

The Governor pointed out one or two loopholes in the law which give to the richer candidate an advantage, and expressed himself as determined to do what he could to secure amendments to the law by the next Legislature which will make it even more rigid than it is now.

"What we want to do," he said, "is to eliminate money altogether in our elections. Let every man stand on his merits and go before the people on them. We want no law that will give a man a better chance than a poor man for any office in the gift of the people, and I want to see the law so amended next year as to make this impossible in Maryland."

Will Choose Eleven Judges.

Few persons realize that next year 11 judges are to be chosen in the judicial circuit of the State and in Baltimore city. The present number of judges is 10, and in a great many years, and it may mean radical changes in the judiciary of the State. The judicial fight will be unquestionably well to the front in the next year, and in certain sections of the State it is the chief matter of political discussion.

The 11th circuit judges expire and whose successors will be chosen next November are as follows:

Court of Appeals—Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, A. Hunter Boyd, of Allegany county; Judge W. Laid Henry, of Dorchester county; Judge Glenn H. Worthington, of Frederick county.

Associate Judges—First circuit, Judge R. D. Jones, of Worcester county; Fifth circuit, Judge William H. Forsythe, Jr., of Howard county; Judge James H. Brashers, of Anne Arundel county; Seventh circuit, Judge B. Harris Cammer, of St. Mary's county; and Judge George C. Merrick, of Prince George's county.

Baltimore City Supreme Court—Judge John J. Dobler, Judge Conway W. Sams and Judge Charles W. Hendrix.

All these judges, except Judge Dobler, of Baltimore city, and Judge Merrick, of Prince George's county, are Democrats. Nearly all are sure of re-nomination. Judge Merrick will not be re-nominated, as he has reached the age limit and will step down and out.

With the exception of Judge Merrick, all the others will be re-nominated. There is some opposition to Judge Henry in Dorchester county, where there are several aspirants for the judgeship, but Judge Henry's friends believe the trouble there will be straightened out before the judicial convention meets and that there will have no difficulty about the nomination.

Of the 11 judges whose terms expire only 2 of them—Judge Boyd and Judge Dobler—have served consecutive terms. Judge Merrick's term does not properly expire until 1912. Judges Worthington and Forsythe were appointed by ex-Governor Wood two years ago, and all the others were appointed by Governor Crothers and have not served a full year.

Of all the judges Judge Boyd will probably have the hardest fight. His judicial circuit is normally heavily Republican, being composed of Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties. Judge Boyd is a Democrat, and as an effort is being made to get him an endorsement from the Republicans. Because of the opposition of Col. George A. Pease this is not regarded as possible, and his friends realize that he will have a hard fight to win.

Already the fight in Allegany county has started for him, and the Hyman, Kern and Lewis Democratic Clubs there are being dissolved and formed into Club clubs.

Judge Worthington, in a close circuit, his counties being Frederick and Montgomery. The late Judge McSherry was re-elected from this circuit by a scant 500 majority, and the most prominent men in the State, regardless of party, took part in his campaign.

In Baltimore city an effort is being made to avoid a fight over Judge Dobler. Judge Dobler is a Republican, but it is believed the Democratic organization in the city will not attempt to refrain from making any nomination, but some of the organization Republicans say they do not see the wisdom of giving the Democrats two and getting only one themselves. But the sentiment among members of the bar in Baltimore city is strongly against a judgeship fight.

All three of the judges who are to come before the people for re-election have made good records, and the feeling is that they should be kept there. The Democratic organization on matters as they are anxious to do what they can to show they have no desire to play politics with the judiciary and that they stand for a nonpartisan bench. Accordingly there does not seem to be any doubt that they will endorse Judge Dobler unless the Republicans should insist upon fighting both Judge Sams and Judge Heuler, which is not considered likely.

SENATOR RAYNER'S CHANCES.

The next Legislature not only elects a State Treasurer to succeed State Treasurer James H. Rayner, but a United States Senator to succeed Senator Isidor Rayner. Interest in the Senatorial question is already evoked in political circles and the Baltimore City organization has taken its stand in favor of Senator Rayner, regardless of who else may be in the field. The city leaders reached this determination some time ago and it has been so open secret for some months that the organization of that city would be for Mr. Rayner.

Some politicians do not believe there will be any opposition to Mr. Rayner when the time comes, notwithstanding the booming of State Senator Gorman by his friends some months ago. Senator Gorman has never said he would be a candidate, and some of his close friends do not think he will be.

There is on the statute books a Senatorial Primary law, the provisions of which apply to both political parties. While the law is by no means what it should be, it is a step in advance and will compel aspirants for the Senate to come out in the open and submit their candidacy to the people who will have an opportunity to directly vote for or against the candidates. The primaries are held on the same day as the general election and the law applies to Republicans as well as Democrats. There has been some talk of the probability of the Republicans ignoring the law altogether on the ground that as the Constitution of the country provides for the election of the United States Senators by the Legislature, the Legislature can pass no law making it binding on the party to submit its candidates in the primaries.

SENTIMENT AND THE AMENDMENT.

One of the things which the Democratic party managers are anxiously watching now is the sentiment toward the suffrage amendment proposed by the last Legislature, and which will be voted upon at the next election. They believe that this time the amendment will be ratified by the people, not only because the objectionable features of the first amendment have been eliminated and an amendment conceded to be fair has been substituted, but because the Democratic party is apparently united in its support.

The first amendment, defeated in 1905, was opposed by Governor Wood, Attorney General Bryan, both United States Senators Rayner and White, and practically every prominent independent Democrat in the State. The party was hopelessly split and there never was any chance for the amendment.

This time, it is said, things are different. Not only will the Governor and the Attorney General be in favor of the amendment, but both United States Senators and most of the independent members of the former one. Most of the independents, such as William L. Marbury and Roger W. Cull, were members of the late Legislature and were in the amendment. For that reason, it is believed, it will be passed.

They expect, of course, the united opposition of the Republican party, but are confident that if the measure can be explained to the foreign element in such a way as to ally their fears, there will be no difficulty in passing it. The fear that the presence of the amendment on the ticket will tend to drag down the candidates, the city leaders say, is a thing that was founded in the air. The contrary is true, they say. For instance, the negro vote will be so anxious to vote against the amendment that it will not care about risking making too many cross marks on his ballot for fear of having it thrown out. Accordingly he will make his mark against the amendment and for nothing else, which will run the Democratic candidates ahead.
