The counties named in our last issue are still under quarantine, and just how long they are to remain so, as yet the authorities have given no intimation. Within the past week there have been no new cases developed among the cattle in this county.

A horse was stolen from the stable on the farm of Mr. Lee Offutt, situated about four miles north of Rockville, on Tuesday night last. It was found Wednesday at the farm of Mr. Richter, near Germantown. It is supposed the theft was committed by some one with the purpose of securing a ride into the neighborhood where the animal was found, and having no further use for the animal turned it loose. The thief remains unknown.

Mrs. Mattie Thompson, wife of Harry Thompson, a merchant at Boyds, while on her way home Monday night from the store which she had closed during the absence of her husband, was attacked by a negro within 100 feet of her own home. Mrs. Thompson was unable to describe him.

James W. Cummings, of Bethesda district, who was in jail upon the charge of killing Harrison Weaver, a negro man, was not indicted by the late Grand Jury. At the time the jury was discharged, Judge Peter informed that body that the judge was surprised at the failure to find an indictment against Cummings. He said it was the duty of the jury to indict and to leave to a petit jury the determination of the man's guilt or innocence. Cummings was brought into court and his release ordered.

These are the first prosecutions under the law in this county.

Allnutt, Alvie Ricketts and Stephen Platt, three young men of Rockville, were injured last Friday evening in an automobile accident which happened on the road a short distance this side of Bethesda. In the fall Ricketts had his shoulder-blade broken and Platt and Allnutt were scared about their heads and hands. The former two are improving in their condition, but the latter has grown worse, and in his deliriousness his physician is apprehensive that he has been seriously injured. He is at the home of his father, Mr. H. C. Allnutt, near this town. The machine belonged to Mr. Lee Ricketts and was badly damaged.

Woman's Club Of Bethesda.

The Woman's Club of Bethesda met at St. John's Rectory, Bethesda, on the afternoon of November 10, Mrs. James Kirkpatrick, hostess, and the President, Mrs. Enoch Johnston, in the chair.

It was an overflow meeting, the members filling the parlors.

The principal business brought before the club was the revision of the constitution, made necessary by the largely increased membership in the past year. After routine business, the program for the day followed. The responses for the day comprised household hints. Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, a member also of the Twentieth Century Club of the District, gave an interesting talk on the interest of a pure milk supply. Mrs. Grosvenor read extracts, too, from a highly instructive paper she had written on the same subject.

Miss Florence Miller, President of the Newcomb Club, was present, by invitation, to tell of the work of that club along the same lines.

Reports were read by Mrs. Kirkpatrick, representative of the club in the Executive Committee of the County Federation, and Mrs. Edmund P. Ellis, Chairman of the Civic Committee of the club, told of her work.

During the social period, afternoon tea was served. The club adjourned to meet November 24th with Mrs. Daniel P. Morgan at her home, "Cedarlyn," on the old Georgetown Road. Judge J. Wilmer Lattimer will speak on "Delinquency," and the response for the day will be "Children in Bondage."

Whereas, Authority is given by statute to the Live Stock Sanitary Board to make and enforce regulations to prevent the spread of such disease, and

Whereas, I have been requested by said Board to issue a proclamation prohibiting the running at large of such dogs:

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of Maryland, Done at the city of Annapolis, this 14th day of November, Nineteen Hundred and Fourteen.

Signed: P. L. GOLDSBORO, By the Governor, ROBERT P. GRAHAM, Secretary of State.

The Civics and Educational Committees Actively At Work.

A joint meeting of the Civics and Educational Committees of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs was held at the home of Mrs. Harry C. Armstrong, in Kensington, on Friday last. A dainty luncheon was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Merritt O. Chance, after which Mrs. Armstrong welcomed those present and announced that Mrs. Ryan would be present later in the afternoon and would address the committees on "Rural Schools." Meanwhile, the work of the Federation through these two committees was discussed. Mrs. Chance announced that her committee work would be divided as follows: A section on "Good Roads" in charge of Mrs. Leonard Hayes, of Barnesville; one on "Sanitation" with Mrs. Diefendorf, of Garrett Park, at its head; and a third to investigate the "Milk" question under Mrs. Herbert Filer, of Kensington. Mrs. Chance spoke of the need for the women to know more about the laws relating to civic conditions and recommended that some work be done along such lines in every club in the county. Inquiry developed the fact that of the twenty-three clubs federated, only the Woman's Club of Kensington and the Just Government League have ever made any sort of study of the laws of Maryland as they affect women. Co-operation between the women interested in bettering local conditions and the men of the locality was strongly urged.

Mrs. Armstrong showed the members of her committee that every club woman, whether she has children in the schools of her locality or not, should visit the schools in her vicinity. Membership in and attendance upon the meetings of the Parents' and Teachers' Association, which should be flourishing in each community, was recommended. The greatest need in the Maryland schools is that of better-trained teachers. The political appointments, of which we have some in Maryland, often result in obtaining excellent teachers; but where there are in any community several untrained teachers, the teacher in charge is often of one of wide experience and ripe judgment.

The idea of using the school houses as social centers is growing in popularity and could easily be adopted in some localities. The enforcement of the Compulsory School Attendance law was discussed. The old question of having a woman appointed on the school board is still before the women of the county. The needs of the colored schools, both as to housing and equipment, are becoming insistent. It is hoped that some possible way will be found for establishing vocational schools for colored children in the future.

Mrs. Ryan, a teacher in Montgomery County, was introduced and read an article prepared by Edwin J. Colgan, Jr., on "Rural Schools" to lead the way to a free discussion of the conditions in our own schools. About thirty-five ladies attended the meeting, representing nearly every part of the county.

Warner-Moore Wedding.

At 5 o'clock last Saturday afternoon, at Pen-Y-Bryn, the home of the bride's mother, near Sandy Spring, this county, Miss Mary C. Moore, daughter of Mrs. J. T. Moore, Jr., and Mr. Brainerd H. Warner, Jr., of Kensington, were married in the presence of members of the two families and a few intimate friends. The officiating minister was Rev. James T. Marshall, of Washington, formerly pastor of Warner Memorial Presbyterian Church, Kensington. The home was attractively decorated with autumn leaves, laurel and white and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. Joseph T. Moore, Sr., of Sandy Spring. She was attended by Miss Warfield Crenshaw, of Richmond, Va., as maid of honor. The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Philip Warner, of Washington.

Little Miss Alice Moore, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, and the ribbon bearers were little Misses Helen Brooke, of Roland Park, and Mary Robertson, of Sandy Spring, and Masters Lewis Rumford and Robert Fitzhugh.

The marches were played by Miss Roberta Allen, of Washington, on the violin, accompanied by Miss Irene Kinler, of Williamsport, Md., on the piano.

Soon after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Warner departed for an extended honeymoon trip. They will make their home in Washington.

The Late Vote On Woman Suffrage.

Mr. Editor:—Returns on the vote on amendments granting woman suffrage, submitted in seven States, have come in slowly. Only by following the papers very carefully has it been possible to learn the actual results. For this reason, I think, many of your readers who are interested in this subject will be glad to know just what the facts are.

In Nevada the suffrage amendment carried by a large majority, about 3000 out of a total vote of 20,000. This wipes out what suffragists called the "black spot" on their maps and what was, indeed, quite literally a moral black spot, for Reno, Nev., has been long known not only as a resort for prospective divorcees and prize fighters, but as a center of many social evils. It seems to be taken for granted by Nevada citizens that all that will come to an end now that women are to vote.

In Montana, after a protracted count lasting ten days or more, the amendment is declared carried by a majority of 3500, the opponents conceding this. In this State the Liquor Dealers' Association made a stupendous fight against the amendment and all believers in temperance should be glad they were unsuccessful. The winning of these two States makes woman suffrage universal in the Rocky Mountains and on the Pacific Coast. The fact that it spreads from States that have to those adjacent would certainly seem to show that these results are satisfactory to those who have a chance to observe them.

In the other five States the amendments failed to pass, in several by such narrow margins that their advocates hope to have the matter referred again soon with better results. In Ohio the amendment, though defeated, polled a much larger vote than two years ago. Every woman's organization in this State, with the exception of the very small anti-suffrage organization, had endorsed suffrage.

In four of the States where women now vote, Oregon, Washington, Colorado and Arizona, prohibition amendments were carried by large majorities. In one California, a wine-growing State, prohibition was defeated, though other vital matters of social reform were passed on favorably.

Although this was the first general election at which women have voted in Kansas, and they are a minority of the population, over 40 per cent. of the total vote was cast by them. In Chicago women could not, under the law, vote for any of the more important officers, but their ballots are said to have saved the Sanitary Board from corrupt political domination. Every year it becomes more and more plain that in States where woman suffrage is a practical question and its results are seen first hand, it commends itself to all citizens who desire better political, industrial, social and moral conditions and is opposed most by those who profit from present evils. In our older communities, where the question has not come home to most people, many honorable and upright citizens still oppose it, because, I suppose, their grandfathers did.

Urges Marble Bust For Takoma Park Founder.

In connection with the report of E. V. Crittenden, chairman of the committee on parks and parking, President W. C. Platt of the Takoma Park Citizens' Association, one of the pioneer residents of the park, urged the members of the association and the committee last Monday night to foster the idea of the erection of a marble bust or monument to the memory of Benjamin F. Gilbert, founder of Takoma Park, when planning a public park for that suburb.

President Platt eulogized the work of Mr. Gilbert, and told of the large sums of money he had spent in the upbuilding of Takoma Park. He outlined many other patriotic movements which Mr. Gilbert launched in the interest of the town.

"When you speak of utilizing some of the ground for park purposes don't let us forget the founder of Takoma Park," he concluded.

E. V. Crittenden reported that a committee meeting had been held earlier in the evening, and plans were under way for beautifying the parks and lawns with the co-operation and assistance of the citizens of the park. He expected to have a promenade and a large, well-illustrated lecture at some future date.

It was suggested that there was a large tract of ground in North Takoma which would make a suitable public park, where a large pool could be constructed with natural running water, which could be used for skating purposes in the winter and as a swimming pool in the summer.

There are more than two acres of ground which could be devoted to park purposes, it was stated.

Linthicum's Hat In The Ring.

Representative Charles J. Linthicum, of Baltimore, threw his hat squarely in the middle of the hitherto unoccupied gubernatorial ring last Friday.

"Yes; I shall make the race for the Governorship," said the Fourth district Congressman, "and I shall go straight to the people and ask them for the nomination."

"I am going straight to the people all over the State with this request, and in order to reach as many personally as I can I will spend the greater part of the time between this date and the convening of Congress early in December in traveling over the State and into every county if possible. After Congress convenes I will be very busy with my duties in Washington and will not have time to go over the State. That is the reason I am beginning at this time."

"There is not much time between this and the meeting of Congress, so that I shall be very busy if I am to see as many people and visit as many places as I hope to do."

"My appeal to the voters will be on my record, but about the first of the year I purpose to announce to a dense and crowded group of voters and to every corner of my mind on the public questions affecting the State, and the things that I hope to do if chosen by the people to the Governorship. Until such announcement I prefer not to go into details as to my plans and policies."

The entry of Mr. Linthicum into the arena this early will, it is expected, incite a number of other receptive candidates to make the plunge. He has forestalled Congressman Jesse D. Price, State Comptroller Emerson Harrington, State Senator Carlisle D. Benson and others who are credited with listening attentively to the buzzing of that gubernatorial bee.

Senator Lee Has No Quarrel With Smith.

From the Baltimore News.

Commenting in a letter to The News on an editorial published yesterday, Senator Blair Lee stated that he and Senator Smith would not quarrel over the patronage question. As a Wilson man he believed, he said, that men in sympathy with the President's ideas should be given preference. He had recommended men for offices, Senator Smith was privileged to do likewise, and it was the function of the President to decide.

The Senator's letter is as follows: "I have just read your editorial of this afternoon, November 12, under the caption, 'The Federal Patronage Quarrel.'"

"What you say indicates that I have failed to make clear to you my position regarding this matter of Federal appointments in Maryland."

"In the first place, there is no quarrel whatever between Senator Smith and myself in regard to this matter. On the contrary, I have stated distinctly that I was entirely unwilling to engage in any dispute with either Senator Smith or anyone else with reference to it."

"As I have already stated in a previous communication to the press, Senator Smith has a perfect right to recommend to the President for appointment the men whose appointment he considered would be for the best interest of the public. If he should do this, it would certainly be no cause for quarrel; on the contrary, I think it is his duty to do so. On the other hand, I deem it my duty to recommend for these places the men whose appointment I think would best serve the public interest. Both of us will recommend Democrats, of course, because these officers are not included within the classified service, and it is a practical impossibility to ignore the political effect of such appointments."

"I have made my recommendations, and move on my full duty."

"As I have previously stated, I am perfectly willing to accept and vote to confirm any proper appointments the President may make, no matter whether they are recommended by myself or by Senator Smith, or by a Congressman, or by anyone else."

"My political views are and have always been so much in accord with those for which the President stands that this is a matter which concerns him quite as much as it does me."

"You say in your editorial: 'There is no principle at all at stake in the matter of a division of the patronage here.' This depends, of course, on how far back you go. You start in with a division of patronage committed to without regard to its political effect or reactional results, then, of course, there is no principle involved. In fact, there would be nothing left except personal preferences."

"If, on the other hand, there has been a line of policies placed before a nation of men, and certain progressive Democratic men have shown appreciation of and devotion to those policies, and the leaders who have stood for them, such men are the kind to prefer for putting such policies into executive operation."

"President Wilson represents certain great public promises and purposes, which we call liberal, progressive and Democratic. I confess devotion to the policies of the great liberal Democratic leaders, and believe that the future should have a preference certainly for the first and leading officers of this Administration."

"There is, therefore, a principle involved in the position which I take, and that is that no Senator ought to recommend for appointment any persons except those whom he thinks the President ought to appoint, and I am fully and gratefully endorsed by the Senator or anyone else who thinks differently."

"There is not the slightest reason why Senator Smith and myself should quarrel about this matter, and we shall not do so."

"Let every man stand for what he believes to be in the best interest of his State and his party, and let the President decide."

Report Of The Grand Jury.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Circuit Court for Montgomery County, Md.

The Grand Jury for the November Term of the Circuit Court beg leave to submit the following as their report:

We have examined 240 witnesses, including the sheriff, deputy sheriffs and constables, in reference to their knowledge of violation of the law. We found among the deputies and constables four men who say they have not been in office for two years and think their names should be stricken from the list. We have found 41 indictments and have dismissed a number which did not seem to have sufficient evidence to warrant a presentment.

We examined the Court House and grounds and found the offices in the building in an attractive condition and well furnished. We found the grounds well attended to.

We have visited the Jail, and in spite of the recommendations of many former grand juries that it be relegated to scrap heap and replaced by a modern building, find that the old land-mark, with a few repairs, will be capable of holding the criminals of the county for many years yet. We found 26 inmates, 8 white males, 1 white female, 13 colored males, 4 colored females. They are much crowded, and if the population of this county persist in having as large a percentage confined to the structure as now occupy it, additional room will be needed, but the most economical construction will be a separate home for the jailer and his family. The building is as neatly kept as it can be in its crowded condition. It is well coated with whitewash, some of which should be scraped off before another coat is applied, as the numerous coats now on the walls are reducing the size of the rooms.

The occupants look healthy and some of those confined longest have gained in flesh on the plain but abundant rations provided by the keeper. We recommend that at least one electric light be installed in each hallway of the prison, upstairs and down, as most of the refractory prisoners are brought in at night, and some general light instead of the old-time lantern will add greatly to the safety of the officials who have to deal with them. The roof of the building has lost a great many slates and at one place has a large hole in it where some prisoner in time now forgotten attempted to cut out through the roof. The whole roof should be gone over by a slater and all tin patches removed and missing slates replaced. The guttering in front of the building has been damaged by a falling tree at some time in the past, as was mentioned by a grand jury of some years back, has filled up with trash and grown a crop of grass the past summer. On the back of the building the gutter was designed on a new plan, conductors were placed at the ends, but the gutter is hung lower in the middle so that it empties over the cellar window and floods the cellar every time it rains by running in the window. These should be repaired. The kitchen porch has settled away from the building and will fall, in time, if not repaired. The outside of the walls needs repointing with cement mortar, and the large gate should be relined with iron, as the present lining is about gone.

We request a new roof on the cow stable, as the building is being damaged by the leakage of that now on it. A new fence around the garden and yard is also needed, as the old one is a disgrace to the rich county of Montgomery. The grating saved out by William Smith, Isaac Gilmore and James Gibbs, who broke jail this summer, has not been replaced, and we recommend that new gratings be put on the corresponding window at the other end of the building when this is renewed, as it must be.

We ask the Court to call the attention of the Board of County Commissioners to these recommendations and that they be included in the levy for 1915.
