The Hartford Burglars.

One Pleads Guilty and Makes a Full Confession—Attempts to Chloroform a Pawn Broker.

The examination of the burglars Albert Cherry and Charles Tatro, the two men charged with committing a number of burglaries in Hartford and also conspiring to chloroform and rob Mr. Moses Ballerstein, the pawnbroker, took place yesterday in the Hartford police court, before Judge Eggleston. Judge Monroe E. Merrill, who had been engaged to defend Tatro, declined to accept the place, and Mr. Merwin appeared for him. Four charges of burglary, at the residences of Mrs. O. G. Terry, George H. Burdick, Henry Kellogg and Captain John M. Parker, were preferred against both men; also the charge of conspiring to rob Mr. Ballerstein. To all Cherry pleaded guilty and Tatro not guilty.

The most important testimony was that given by Cherry, one of the accused, who gave a complete history of the burglarious operations of himself and Tatro. He said he was induced to commit the burglaries by Tatro, who shared in the proceeds. One of their schemes, he said, was to chloroform an old pawnbroker named Ballerstein and then rob him. Tatro's plan was that Cherry should chloroform the old man and then he (Tatro) was to come in and commit the robbery. This was so that Ballerstein would not recognize him. They met the next night, when Tatro went up into the pawnbroker's shop and came back and said that a boy was there. The next night Cherry went in and asked Ballerstein to show him some rings. There was a very pretty girl there, and he forgot all about the theft, and thought if he could have a girl like her he would be happy for life. He had an eye on the girl and his finger on the rings while Ballerstein had his eye on him. The next night Tatro went over to the shop, and as soon as he got into the room Ballerstein opened the window. This made Cherry laugh. Tatro came back and said "he believed the old man had dropped on them." He proposed to chloroform the old man at the South Green on his way home. They went there, but did not see the old man. Then Cherry told Tatro that Ballerstein might go to h—l. Tatro then wanted him to get some other colored man to help him. He told him of Pat Warren, and he (Tatro) sent him after the man. All met near the postoffice and went into a gangway near the Charter Oak building, where they talked the matter over, but did not agree upon any plan. It was proposed to meet the next day in a house on Charles street. They met there, but Tatro did not like the place, nor did he like the man Patrick Warren, whom he thought would get drunk and give the whole thing away. After this Tatro proposed the burglaries. He would pick out the house and Cherry was to do the work.

When Tatro took the stand he denied everything Cherry had said, but very few if any believed what he was saying. The hearing continued late into the afternoon.

College Notes.

Prof. Wheeler lectures to the seniors to-day at 10 a. m. on the latter part of the reign of Elizabeth.

Miss Charlotte A. Scott, of Girton College, Cambridge, has been awarded a rank equal to that of eighth wrangler in the mathematical tripos.

John D. Rockafeller, of Cleveland, O., has recently given $25,000 to Rochester University. Only $10,000 are now lacking to complete the endowment of $150,000.

President Eliot seems to meet with considerable opposition in his endeavors to enlarge the field of Harvard's work. The obstructionists especially object to the proposed professorship of architecture, claiming that there are now more professors than students in the art school. The plan of an unsectarian divinity school is looked upon with disfavor.

At a meeting of the Columbia undergraduates held Saturday evening it was voted to raise money to assist in the detection of the persons who recently destroyed their boats; also to purchase new boats to replace those destroyed, and to remove the boat house from its present position.

The senior class at Princeton is again in hot water. It is doubtful if any class at present in an American college has seen as much trouble as the class of '80 at Princeton. At the end of freshman year the entire class was suspended. A few months later they were again subjected to the delicate consideration of the faculty for injudicious pistol practice, and now the president has abolished class day, which is more than the students are willing to submit to. The class entered college with 130 men, but will graduate less than 80. This is perhaps as much owing to the whimsical action of Dr. McCosh as to the irregularities of the students.

The senior class of the Law School have appointed as a picture committee C. H. Northrop (chairman), E. B. Goodsell and J. M. Murdoch.

The prizes for the winter games of the Yale Athletic Association are on exhibition at Benjamin & Ford's. They are the most beautiful and substantial articles ever offered to Yale athletes. They comprise the following articles:

Single bow, 8 candlesticks.
Heavy dumb bells, cigar stand.

City Court Notes.

In the City Court yesterday morning John Meyer, jr., was arraigned for burglary at Ives' bakery, corner of State and Elm streets, on Sunday morning. He first pleaded not guilty, but afterward changed his ples to guilty. He was fined $100 and costs and sent to jail for six months.

Patrick McDermott was before the court on a charge of drunkenness and resisting Officer Maurice Higgins. He was found guilty, fined $1 and costs for drunkenness and $10 and costs for resisting the officer.

William J. Markey was charged with assaulting his wife Bridget, who is a domestic at the house of Charles L. English. He went to the house drunk and raised a general disturbance. Judge Pardee fined him $10 and costs.

John McGarry was called upon to answer to a charge of assaulting his wife. After hearing the evidence Judge Pardee said he thought the man ought to be severely punished and so sentenced him to jail for three months.

Thomas King, who drives a coal cart for Levi O. Gilbert, was charged with interfering with Officer Clancey while he was making an arrest last Saturday. He was found guilty and fined $10 and costs.

A Farmer's Terrible Experience.

Augustus Parker, a highly respected resident of Montville and widely known in New London county, had a narrow escape from a terrible death recently. With his ox team he repaired alone to the wood to get a medium sized log. He selected a tree and cut it off at the butt, when by reason of a large grapevine which was intertwined with its limbs and those of the other trees it refused to fall in the desired direction, and canting suddenly, fell across the space where Mr. Parker was standing, knocking him down and pinning him to the ground, lying directly across his knees. After remaining in this position for some length of time, Mr. Parker managed by sacrificing a portion of the flesh on one leg, to work it from under the log, but found that the other was so securely fastened that it was impossible to move it. The pain of the injuries became intense, and as he was a long distance from human habitation, no prospect of relief seemed offered him. At length he succeeded in reaching a stout wooden lever, and by placing this under the log and over his shoulder, succeeded in rolling it from the stump and from his leg. Being unable to walk, he crawled to his team, and turning the oxen toward home, got into the cart and started them. In doing this he became so exhausted that he found it impossible to exert himself further, and lying at length in the vehicle, he managed to hold on while the cattle, eager to get at their feed, executed a go-as-you-please race through the rough pasture, and it seemed to Mr. Parker, over every stone heap in the vicinity. A neighbor's attention was attracted to Mr. Parker's condition by the latter's signals when the perilous ride was nearly ended, and he immediately rendered assistance. Mr. Parker is in a fair way of complete recovery from his severe injury.

Wallingford.

The local police raided the disreputable house known as "the Red House," Saturday night, and captured sixteen persons, four women and twelve men. Four of the latter were from Wallingford and the remainder from Meriden.

Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co. will put in a new Corliss engine of 100 horse power in a few weeks.

Steps are being taken for the opening of a new street from Center south to Ward street, at a point about midway between Main and Orchard streets.

Branford.

Dr. Olmstead on Friday evening next will give the first of his "Lenten lectures" in Trinity church.

The changs which has been lately made in the Congregational church from evening to afternoon service does not seem to be appreciated by some of the younger members, who, for some good reasons, prefer an evening meeting.

On Tuesday evening Mr. Abbott Page will deliver the second lecture in the course by "Branford young men," at the Opera House.

Every rain makes it evident to pedestrians that Branford is deficient in good sidewalks and street crossings. The Village Improvement Society has made a good walk to the Town Hall, and there is one from the Totoket to the Episcopal church, but to reach either there is a discouraging depth of street mud to be passed through. A concrete walk in front of some of the fine residences on Main street might be a good example, which would be followed by others to the great benefit of the public. Feb. 16.

Milford.

Mrs. Martha T. Merwin, wife of David Merwin, who has been in failing health for a year or more past, died on Friday afternoon, the 6th inst. The last three weeks of her sickness she failed rapidly, receiving a stroke of paralysis about ten days before her death, which, though leaving her conscious, deprived her of the use of her speech, and left one side of the body helpless. Mrs. M. was a member of the Plymouth church, Milford, and a good Christian woman, full of prayer and good works, much beloved, and exhibited through her suffering, and to the last, a most worthy example of faith and Christian triumph. Her pastor, Rev. Geo. H. Griffin, officiated at the funeral, held at the home of deceased at 2 p. m. on Tuesday, and paid a proper tribute to her memory. Beside the husband, two sons survive the mother, one, Geo. P. Merwin, for many years a manufacturer and merchant of New York city. The other, Rev. N. T. Merwin, pastor for fifteen years over the Congregational church of Trumbull, Conn. She leaves two brothers, who are ministers of the gospel; also of her nephews, two, who are pastors settled over thriving churches.

Brandy Making in France.

(French Correspondence of the New York Tribune.)

I do not think that any of the published accounts have illustrated the extent of the disaster so far as it affects this region. The Moniteur Vinicole, the recognized organ of vine-growing interests, has published what claims to be a statement of the wine crops in the various parts of France. The wine of Charentes, it says, and I think it overestimates, will not make this year over 1,500,000 hectolitres of wine, as compared with nearly 7,000,000 in 1875. I asked a prominent brandy merchant of this city how much the brandy crop of Charentes, which necessarily depends on the wine crop, would amount to. His reply was "practically nil." It is not only the quantity, but more particularly the alcoholic density of the wine crop in any given year that determines the brandy crop for the same year. There are years, for instance, when even with an increased productiveness of the vines there is less brandy as a resultant than in other years when the vines bore less, but the grapes contained a greater percentage of alcohol. But this year not only do the vines lack grapes, but the grapes, such as there are, lack alcohol, and it is a bad time generally for the brandy dealers.

But, strange to say, "Old Cognac" is found to be just as plentiful as ever. That is, there is no end of casks and cases so labeled and filled with a liquid which in taste and appearance so closely resembles the distilled juice of the grape as to defy all the ordinary means of detection. Some months ago a French newspaper correspondent writing from Bordeaux to the New Era, of Cognac, made the startling assertion that enormous quantities of spurious brandy known as "trois-six," a distillation from grain, beet-root, potatoes or other substances, were arriving there from Germany, were put into brandy casks which had been sent back empty from London, and were then shipped to foreign countries, notably to England and Spain as "Pure Cognac Brandy." To what extent foreign markets have been deluged with this spurious stuff I will not undertake to say. There is no means of detecting the imposition. If there be any fraud in it, it is one which would be classed as only a "commercial fraud"—an affair between buyer and seller, between producer and consumer. It does not concern the French Government so long as duties are paid on the alcohol; it does not concern the United States Government in case of any shipment being made to our country, for the regular entry duty of $2 per gallon is paid the same as on good brandy. It is for buyers and consumers to look out for themselves. The chemist can discover any difference between the genuine and the spurious brandy; the most expert connoisseurs find it impossible to distinguish one from the other by the taste. The variation in price alone would serve as a guide were it not that the bad so successfully counterfeits the good as to command an equal price in the market. A hectolitre composed partly of good brandy and partly of "trois-six" can be manufactured at a cost, it is said, of 100 or 110 francs, and sell at 175 or 180. But after all, "de gustibus non disputandum." If buyers and consumers find the spurious article equally palatable with the genuine, even though in the long run its use does prove deleterious, who is to hinder them from purchasing and drinking? Still the fact remains that the traffic in the original cognac, such as our Yankee shippers used to buy once for our forefathers to smack their lips over, is now sensibly feeling the effects of their cheap competition. There is plenty of good brandy yet on hand. Even seven years of Egyptian famine would not suffice to exhaust the stocks laid up in the enormous vaults of the Hennesseys, Martel, Otard, Dupuy and other great houses lining the Charentes. In the years of plenty ample provision has been made for such short crops as this of 1879, and good grape brandy will always be forthcoming from Cognac for those who are willing to pay for it, and who have a care to order it from honorable and trustworthy dealers.

Catarrhal

POISON

Wei De Meyer's Treatise on Catarrh, explains the following important facts:

1. That Catarrhal Colds become a poisonous infection; at first local, and finally constitutional.

2. That, being Constitutional, the infection is beyond the reach of mere local remedies.

3. That impurities in the nostrils, are necessarily swallowed into the stomach and inhaled into the lungs, thus poisoning the Digestive, Respiratory and Genito-urinary organs.

4. That Catarrhal virus follows the mucous membrane and causes Deafness, Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhœa, Bronchitis, Leucorrhœa, and Consumption.

5. That Smokes, Douches, Inhalations, and Insoluble Snuffs, cannot possibly remove infectious inflammation from the organs named.

6. That an antidote for Catarrh must possess an inoculative affinity for, and the quality of being absorbed by, the purulent mucous wherever located.

Based upon these plain theories, Dr. Wei De Meyer's Catarrh Cure has proved to be infallible. It not only relieves, it cures Catarrh at any stage. Home testimony:

Brown's Household Panacea

is the most effective pain destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly relieve pain, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and it is warranted double the strength of any similar preparation.

It cures pain in the side, back or bowels, sore throat, rheumatism, toothache, and all aches, and is the great reliever of pain. "Brown's Household Panacea" should be in every family. A teaspoonful of the Panacea in a tumbler of hot water (sweetened, if preferred,) taken at bedtime, will break up a cold. 25 cents a bottle.

Much Sickness

undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. Brown's Vermifuge Comfits, or Worm Lozenges, although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. This valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children. Twenty-five cents a box.

The Reason Why.

The tonic effect of Kidney-Wort is produced by its cleansing and purifying action on the blood. Where there is a grevelly deposit in the urine, or milky, ropy urine from disordered Kidneys, it cures without fail. Constipation and Piles readily yield to its cathartic and healing power. f12 3teoditw

Why Are You Bilious?

Because you have allowed your bowels to become costive, and liver torpid. Use Kidney-Wort to produce a free state of the bowels, and it will stimulate the liver to proper action, cleanses the skin of its yellowness, cures bilious headache and causes new life in the blood. Druggists have it.
