ASPIRIN FOR COLDS

Name "Bayer" is on Genuine Aspirin—say Bayer

In this hour the same malevolence of those who think themselves born booted and spurred to ride on the back of others is aimed at the nation's health. These republicans, who think they inherited the right to exclusive and perpetual rule at Washington, like the Admiral at the Washington navy yard, who, many years ago, bequeathed the residence at the navy yard to his descendants, may forgive Woodrow Wilson everything else, but they will never forgive him the supremacy of mind his supremacy of world conference, and his supremacy of success in waging the world war and his vision splendid of concluding a noble world peace.

"These last seven years of accomplishment by the nation's administration will live as the golden era of American power, American wisdom, and American vision."

Mr. Daniels said that the great thing for the Democratic party to do for the future is to remember that its duty is to Americanism, he said. "If we did not know it before, our experience in the world war has taught us that there is no difference between Democrats and Republicans and Independents when it came to courage, service, and loyalty. And there will be no difference of opinion between those who put country above small politics in condemnation of hyphenated politics."

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States district court Thursday, against W. P. Warlick, a Fort Deposit merchant. The action against Warlick was started by Harry Scheuer, Steiner-Lohman Dry Goods Company and Solomon Brothers and Kahn, who claim various debts against the Fort Deposit man.

The petition alleges that W. P. Warlick disposed of a stock of goods valued at approximately $4,000 by selling at prices below cost; that he had committed an act of bankruptcy in disposing of the goods in this manner and by having been absent from his place of business for some time. The petitioners, so the petition sets forth, have been informed that a large portion of the goods composing this stock were removed in trunks shipped by express or freight or in automobiles across the country and that this work was carried on under cover of supposed secrecy.

A subpoena to be served on Warlick for his appearance in the federal court in connection with the alleged bankruptcy of business is requested by the petitioners.

BRYAN GIVEN CREDIT FOR LEAGUE PLANS

Daniels Says Nebraska Laid Foundation For League of Nations Covenant

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—William Jennings Bryan was given credit by Secretary Daniels, speaking at the Jackson Day banquet here tonight, for laying the foundation of the League of Nations covenant through the arbitration treaties negotiated by him as Secretary of State.

In view of published reports that the three-time nominee of the Democrats for the presidency again aspires to lead the party in a campaign, Mr. Daniels' statement created one of the most interesting moments of the dinner. The award secretary's address has proceeded without special incident with applause for recital of Democratic achievements and ripples of amusement at the vigorous sallies at the opposition, until he began to discuss the League of Nations.

"The declaration (of independence) and the covenant (of the League of Nations)," the secretary said, "are the two living light foundations of liberty and peace. It is the glory of the Democratic party that through Jefferson and Wilson we have given these safe charts for all time for safe navigation upon all seas.

"Just as surely as Jefferson's declaration and Lincoln's emancipation proclaims the American statesmanship the covenant will yet bring free nations into such accord that reason and not force, will rule among nations as among individuals. A long step toward this ideal was reached in the liberated and beneficent Bryan treaties, which Germany, alone of European nations, refused and forecasted its action in 1914 in precipitating the war. The principles and spirit of the Bryan treaties expanded and enlarged are embodied in the treaty of peace."

Asserting that no man appreciative of the changing conditions believes the coming presidential election predestined for any party, Secretary Daniels told the banqueters that the record of the last seven years entitles the Democratic party to a renewed lease of power.

"But the Democrats assembled here," he continued, "must bear in mind that virtue is sometimes its only as well as its own reward. A shell-shocked world, with unrest and the spirit of change, admonish us that more will be required than a good record of performance. The people are looking not so much to what has been done as to how the problems of the future are to be solved."

"In this hour the same malevolence of those who think themselves born booted and spurred to ride on the back of others is aimed at the nation's health. These republicans, who think they inherited the right to exclusive and perpetual rule at Washington, like the Admiral at the Washington navy yard, who, many years ago, bequeathed the residence at the navy yard to his descendants, may forgive Woodrow Wilson everything else, but they will never forgive him the supremacy of mind his supremacy of world conference, and his supremacy of success in waging the world war and his vision splendid of concluding a noble world peace."
