MAY STILL GET FREE LIGHTING

Richmond Light Official Says Company Might Continue Service

TOTTENVILLE, Jan. 4.—Tottenville church and other public buildings here and throughout the fifth ward of the borough of Richmond may still enjoy free lighting service according to the announcement being made. Officials of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company were not aware of the fact that the twenty-five year contract and franchise of the old village of Tottenville and the old board of supervisors of the former township of Westfield had not terminated at midnight on December 31, until they were shown the story published in last Friday's News concerning the lighting clause for free light service.

Inspector Mansfield of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company which supplies all electric current the entire island was on his ds yesterday reading the meters the various schools, fire houses d churches and police station and erywhere was confronted with the uestion concerning the free light service. He vouched for the information that the free light would still be given at these places although he said at the same time that you could not tell what the company might do in the matter.

All these places have enjoyed the free service for the past twenty-five years since consolidation and the churches and schools have added many lights to their systems.

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

REAL ESTATE BOARD PUSHES INVESTIGATION

TRENTON, Jan. 4:—The New Jersey Real Estate Commission will invade Camden on Tuesday of next week for the purpose of hearing serious allegations involving the conduct of at least ten realty men in South Jersey, whose methods in handling the business of clients are under fire. Failure of certain brokers to return initial deposits to prospective purchasers when the contemplated transactions were not completed is one of the most flagrant of the alleged misdeeds. About six cases involve this sort of conduct.

In several of these instances the allegations charge brazen defiance of all rules of honesty as well as regard for the privilege of holding a license from the state to engage in the real estate business. In one case concerning an Ocean City broker, accused of failing to return $200, the affidavit of the complaint reads: "He told me to go ahead and enter suit against him, saying that he had placed all his property in his wife's name, and it would be a good advertisement for him, every knock being a boost." If this man is found guilty the commission may recommend restitution of the money deposited or suspend or revoke the license of the accused. An Atlantic City man is charged with returning $1,250 in deposits only after he was threatened with arrest by the persons to whom the money belonged.

CARTERET MAN HELD IN BAIL

CARTERET, Jan. 4:—Thomas Bonvino, of 35 Pershing avenue, who is alleged to have stabbed Arguiti Lardo, a Spaniard, on New Year's day is being held in the local lockup in default of $1,000 bail on a charge of atrocious assault.

When arraigned before Recorder Thomas J. Slugg the defendant said that he drew his knife after Lardo attacked him, pleading self-defense. Bonvino will be committed to the county jail in New Brunswick this afternoon to await the action of the grand jury.

HUGUENOT CHAPTER 88 INSTALLS ITS OFFICERS

TOTTENVILLE, Jan. 4.—The annual installation of officers for Huguenot Chapter, No. 88, Order of the Eastern Star, took place last night at the Masonic Temple and was the scene of a large gathering of members of the order that included many visitors from the other chapters on the island. Past Grand Lecturer Chauncey Goodrich, of Great Kills, was the installing officer and he was assisted by the retiring matron, Mrs. Lizzie P. Frerichs, as marshal and Mrs. Jeanette Videon, as the assistant marshal. Mrs. Frerichs was presented with an electric lamp from her staff of officers during the past year and a pin from the chapter. Henry LaForge who has served as the patron of the chapter for the past seven years was presented with a gold piece from the chapter.

There were more than 200 present that included members and visitors. The newly elected officers installed are: Matron, Mrs. Mina Manee; patron, Henry LaForge; assistant matron, Mrs. Emma Moore; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Sprague; treasurer, Mrs. Emma Sprague; conductress, Mrs. J. D. Firth; associate conductress, Mrs. Gertrude Anderson; trustee for three years, Mrs. Lizzie P. Frerichs; trustee for two years, Mrs. Anita Van Wagner. The appointed officers named by the matron and also placed in their respective chairs are: Ada, Mrs. Mildred Hollowell; Ruth, Mrs. Lucy Randon; Esther, Mrs. Lydia Richards; Martha, Mrs. Emma Frice; Electa, Mrs. Lucy Corson; chaplain, Mrs. Eva Melvin; marshal, Miss Mildred McCallum; historian, Miss Verna Davidson; warder, Mrs. Lillian Miller, and sentinel, Ewald J. Gross; pianist, Miss Anna Robinson.

TRACKLESS TROLLEY TIED UP WHEN POLE JAMS

TOTTENVILLE, Jan. 4—A trackless trolley car became stalled at Arthur Kill road and Bentley street shortly after 10 o'clock last night when the motorman misjudged his distance in turning the corner at that point and got off the roadway into the gutter. In attempting to get back again the trolley pole became jammed in the two feed wires and tied the traffic up around the loop from Main street for two hours until the wrecking crew arrived at 12 o'clock and released the pole. All this time cars coming in from Richmond were turned at Main street and Arthur Kill road. This required considerable maneuvering to get the cars around in the narrow street.

The cars were run all night in order to keep the road open and the storm of last night failed to hinder the travel in the least.

WOMAN TRIES TO KILL SELF

Carteret Resident Swallows Poison—Is Not Expected to Live

CARTERET, Jan. 4.—Angeline Fedesco, wife of Tony Fedesco, thirty-two years old and living at 55 Lewis street attempted suicide when she swallowed a large dose of bichloride of mercury at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon during the absence of her husband. The poison may result in her death within the next forty-eight hours.

According to the police, Mrs. Fedesco has three children and would give birth to another shortly. Her husband, it was said returned home at dinner time and found his wife continuing her household duties and moaning with pains. She refused to divulge the nature of her pains, until after 11 o'clock last night, when a hurry call for Dr. H. L. Strandberg was made. Police Officer Thomas Donahue also appeared and found about ten tablets of the poisonous mercury in the box beside her bed.

After giving her medical aid the physician expressed little hope for her recovery, the police say.

The blue sky, the narrow trail through woodlands, the camp by the side of the mountain lake and a group of khaki-clad youngsters offer big possibilities for character building, training for citizenship and churchmanship. The Boy Scout scheme offers to teachers of boys from twelve to eighteen the best means to supplement the work of the school, the church and the home. Boy Scouts of America recognize certain fundamental principles of boy nature in its program of training boys through purposeful activities. A very carefully constructed theory of boy training has been evolved by eminent boy workers and educators, based upon years of practical experience. This program has been applied to all conditions of boy life in all parts of the country, and has been found to stand the test.

The influence of a decade of this outdoor training through play has had a great and silent influence upon the methods of reaching adolescent youth. Even where the Boy Scout program has not been actually incorporated into the regular work of a school, the presence of a troop in the community has made a great impression upon the boy life of that region. There is scarcely a town or city of any size in America where there is not one or more troop of Boy Scouts. All cities of 125,000 inhabitants or over are organized with first-class executive councils to extend the work, and 20 per cent of the cities of 25,000 inhabitants and over are so well organized as to have executive councils of the first class.

Many schools in these places have actually taken up the Boy Scout work as a part of their regular program. In many public schools of New York City the Boy Scout movement is growing in favor as the most effective means of supplementing the regular work of the schools. Among the objectives of the Boy Scout movement are good citizenship and good churchmanship. By attracting the attention of growing boys of the ages between twelve and eighteen, the activities which conserve their enthusiasm and transmutes their activities into the realization of these objectives, the Boy Scout scheme takes the boy where he is, and supplies him with an interrelated and well-balanced system of interests and things to do.

The scoutmaster is like the teacher in the pivotal, strategic, position of intelligent direction. The training which the scoutmaster gives to the boys of his troop supplements that of the day and high schools of and the Bible school. The Boy Scouts of America recognize frankly that the adult aims of citizenship and character are somewhat different from the boy aims of pleasure and interest. Only can the adult hope to effect his aims as he does so through the boy's interests. The "train" of the adult program must "run" on the "tracks" of the boy's interests propelled by the boy's enthusiasm. Character and citizenship then may be expected as by-products of what the boy does and thinks under leadership and association. To get an ideal or an idea into a boy, one must have his attention. The boy must think it and do it—not merely hear it.

The program of scouting is essentially sound in this regard. It develops the boy through companionship and leadership in activities which interest and appeal to him. The Boy Scout program is carried into effect by a careful scoutmaster through a well thought-out process of leadership and direction.

Discipline as coercion is discouraged except as a measure of extremity. Even here it is extremely rare if ever used in Boy Scout work. Occasions indeed for such extreme measures can hardly arise under the Boy Scout way of regarding boys and the things which they are to do. In place of coercive discipline the Boy Scout idea is to get the things which he likes under intelligent supervision and safeguards.

The need for coercive discipline where it is used in methods other than the Boy Scout program follows from an antagonism of interests, a difference of opinion or the imposing of one will upon another. Scouting not only specifically seeks to avoid the crisis of coercive discipline but indeed offers a proved way to avoid them. The old, now nearly out grown idea of boy discipline assumed inherent conflict between boys and adults in nearly all matters and very frankly sought to beat the boy into submission to the adult idea.

A careful analysis of the need for discipline will generally reveal certain factors which the Boy Scout scheme supplant. Among these factors are an unfilled leisure time spent generally in undirected activities, inadequate companionship and adult leadership. Lack of interest in the things provided to fill that leisure and the desire to substitute leisure or destructive play for work. The elimination of these elements and that of personal misunderstanding would probably remove most of the need for coercive discipline.

Scouting pre-eminently offers a program to fill a boy's leisure under fine leadership with things the boy craves and provides motives and morale which carry over into his work at home and at school.

Scout discipline, however, instead of being coercive is according to the soundest psychological principle of habituation, is fundamentally the scout method of character building—not through words but through deeds which become habitual. This method represents the best and the soundest psychology and good sense—it works. Standards of achievement in all of the scout tests are an admirable method of habituating the scout in exact, thorough, effort. High standards, rigidly enforced, though enforced in a spirit of mutual help, help the boy from later disappointments, in the needs of right living. Scouting is singularly effective because it operates not from above, but from within. It is through the "gang," the troop itself, that standards are enforced. Such enforcement from within is natural and almost eliminates the boy's objection to standards.

All of this works under a blue sky, but the beauty of the Boy Scout program is that it works even though it rains cats and dogs.

Much interest is being manifested by the cast selected by the Parent-Teacher Association of St. Mary's school for the musical comedy to be presented within a short time. Rehearsals will commence within a very short time and will be held nightly.

A joint meeting of the woman's auxiliary to Luke A. Lovely Post and the post members will be held shortly. Several speakers interested in the state organizations will address the members on the night selected. Refreshments and general good time is being planned by the entertainment officer.

Harvey Brumagin has returned from a business visit to Pittsburgh.

There is no improvement in the coal situation in this city. People in dire need of fuel have petitioned Mayor Chase to use his efforts toward getting some sort of fuel for them. Cases where sickness is evident have also been reported.

The Chamber of Commerce have temporarily abandoned their plans for a monster dinner. The affair was scheduled for December, but will be postponed until the spring.

Just who will guide the destinies of Luke A. Lovely Post, American Legion, which has been the subject for much discussion the past several weeks, will be known tonight. Nominations will continue previous to the election and though it is rumored that Chris Mulraine and others will be nominated for the various offices many of the members believe that the nominations already made and not contested thus far will safely be the next officers. Entertainment with refreshments will feature during the course of the evening.

The secretary of the Chamber of Commerce will within a short time send to the members of that organization a list of the eligible members for the board of trustees. A vote will be then taken and the new officers installed. Due to the inclement weather there was no meeting of the chamber last night.

ACTION TODAY ON LEGISLATION

Both Parties Meet at Trenton —Governor's Address to Be Brief

TRENTON, Jan. 4:—Finishing touches are today being put on the legislative policies to be pursued by both parties at the session of the legislature which convenes here Tuesday. The Republican joint conference committee members are here today talking over their proposed program of legislation which will be submitted to the entire Republican membership in the legislature here tomorrow.

The Democratic minority is also here for the last pre-session conference regarding legislation. It is likely that at this conference some remedy for the taxation problem will be agreed upon and prepared in definite shape. Save this subject, the Democratic legislative program is already in shape for the session.

The Republicans also have a subject to discuss today. As yet the majority has taken no definite stand on prohibition in general and the state Hobart enforcement act. An attempt will likely be made to introduce a repealer to that act by the "wets" led by House Leader Corio, of Atlantic county, who has already made known his intention of waging a fight against the "drys."

Governor-elect George S. Silzer has made it known that his first inaugural message to the legislature will be brief. He believes that in the past that the real importance of inaugural messages to the lawmaking body has been lost because of undue length.

Chief among the subjects to be dealt with by the new governor in his message will be taxation and road matters. As to the latter, the present governor and the governor-elect seem to differ. Mr. Silzer is insistent that the entire board should go while Mr. Edwards does not deal with the subject in that way.
