Pupils Move Books From Church to School Building

Rockford, Jan. 9.—The work of moving into the new school building which was completed here yesterday, will be begun today by the pupils who have been attending school at the Methodist church while the building was being constructed.

The new building cost $4,500 and has been completed in ten weeks by Conn & Rutherford of Beatrice. It contains three rooms and is warmed by a Campbell hot air heating plant.

It is planned to add the ninth and tenth grades to the school curriculum next year.

Cahill of Arnold is Charged with Firing His Home

Broken Bow, Neb., Jan. 9.—Acting upon information received from Deputy Fire Inspector H. E. Raquarte and from investigations made by himself and Sheriff Wilson, County Attorney Beals has filed a complaint against Thomas Cahill, an auctioneer of Arnold, charging him with arson. Cahill's house was partly destroyed by fire a few days ago and the fire inspector had been investigating the cause. The officers in going over the damaged property, discovered that a quantity of coal oil had been sprinkled in the unfinished garret or upper story. Cahill was known to have purchased a large quantity of coal oil within the last few days, none of which could be found in cans about the house. Cahill's residence and furniture were insured to the full amount of their value.

Kearney, Neb., Jan. 9.—Charged with setting his home on fire last Monday, Thomas Cahill was brought to Kearney by Deputy Fire Commissioner Raquarte yesterday afternoon from his home at Arnold. Mrs. Cahill was rescued by neighbors from the burning building after the fire had been discovered. She was in an unconscious condition. She was revived by physicians in several hours and she has been hysterical since that time. A full investigation of the matter will be made. Cahill will be held until his wife can tell her story of the fire. The commissioner is reticent in regard to direct evidence against Cahill, but said that it was a plain case of arson. Cahill built the home at Arnold and had it insured to the full amount of its value, $2,500. Mrs. Cahill was a bride of less than a year and the couple seemed to be getting along happily.

Men Who Fought Side By Side Meet After Fifty Years

Hastings, Neb., Jan. 9.—Meeting by chance after fifty years separation, during which time neither knew whether the other was living and then learning that they had both lived for over thirty years within thirty miles of one another, was the remarkable discovery Wednesday afternoon when J. W. Carmichael of this city was introduced by County Assessor Bobbit to George Coburn of Bradshaw, a comrade of the same Indiana regiment during the civil war.

Conversation developed the fact that they were born on the same day January 25, 1844, and that they were within two hours of exactly the same age; also that they had formed family ties after the war which made them second cousins by marriage.

Soon after the close of the war in which both men had fought side by side at Kenesaw mountain and in other important battles, Carmichael returned to his home near Hobbeyville, Ind., and a year later moved to Nebraska. Coburn settled at his old home after the war, but moved to Nebraska locating at Bradshaw in 1882.

"Mutt and Jeff" Play to Standing Room Last Night

Standing room was at a premium at the Paddock theatre last night during the appearance of the "Mutt & Jeff" company, and the audience apparently was well pleased with the performance. The reproduction in life of the famous cartoons of Bud Fisher drew a crowd that wanted to be amused. Many of the best attractions that have appeared in the city would have been pleased to have played to the audience of last evening.

The show was as its name indicates, a succession of foolish and laughable incidents set to music, and is intended to amuse and create laughter, and in that intention it can be stated, was a success. The music was good, and of the catchy rhythm that sets everyone to whistling on the way home, which is perhaps the best kind after all.
