The road is a part of the old Queen and Present System between Cincinnati and Chattanooga, and now is operated as a division of the Southern System.

The proposal for the sale of the road was made today by Councilman Edwin Kellogg, of the First Ward, who submitted for introduction, in city council a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of prominent citizens to investigate the wisdom of selling the road. Kellogg states that he does not look for immediate action, but to inspire a public discussion of the matter. He contends that the road has served the purpose for which it was built by the City of Cincinnati—providing a gateway to the south.

Franchises which the road has to traverse the states of Kentucky and Tennessee will shortly expire and new franchises will have to be negotiated. Kellogg believes the annual revenue of $1,250,000 which the city derives from the rental of the road to the Cincinnati, New Orleans, and Texas Pacific Railroad will be more than made up in the new taxable property which will go on the tax duplicate as a result of the public improvements which can be made out of the proceeds of should bring between $50,000,000 and $65,000,000.

SCIENTISTS IDENTIFY DEER-FLY DISEASE

WASHINGTON.—Sleeping sickness is no longer the last word in unusual ailments. It has a rival.

That rival is deer-fly fever. It isn't as dangerous as the sleeping variety, but it deprives much prestige from the mystery which has surrounded its outbreaks.

Public health officers have at last traced deer-fly fever, however, and have turned on the light.

In recent years there appeared among the people of Millard county, Utah, a strange sickness lasting from two to three weeks, and causing considerable misery to the person afflicted. It was attributed to the bite of an insect. When one case terminated fatally recently an investigation was started and the deer-fly found guilty.

The disease has been identified with a plague-like disease found in the ground squirrels of California in 1911, for which preventatives have been discovered.

LONDON.—The English race is slowly undergoing a change in type, according to Professor Parsons, professor of anatomy at St. Thomas' Hospital. He has measured a considerable number of English and German faces and has found that the German differences in these measurements amounted to 10 per cent.
