

THE SADDEST STORY EVER TOLD

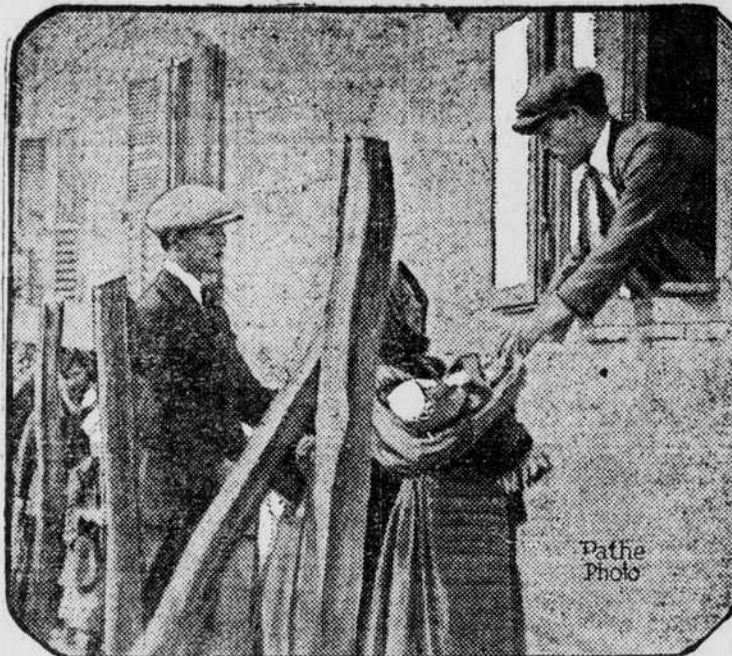

Hungry and footsore, these inhabitants of eastern Thrace have paused in their flight to minister to a child of the party who has fallen sick. These rag-clad pilgrims are Christians who are striving to get out of Thrace before the Turks occupy it.

Freight and cattle cars, continually in movement, are the only homes many peasants of eastern Thrace have known for weeks. Here is a train with even its roof occupied by fleeing Christians, anxious to leave Thrace before the Turks come in.

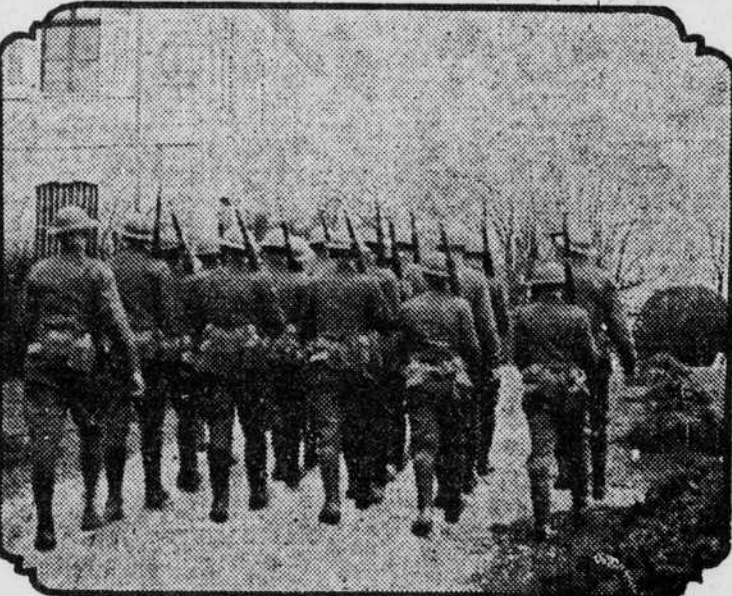

Piling all their worldly goods into ox-carts, the Christians of western Thrace started to leave the country when news reached them that the Mudania agreement had permitted the Turks to occupy their country. Here is a picturesque group bound for the Greek border.

This eastern Thracian woman and her baby, doomed to quit their home because of the Turkish occupation, is receiving a dose of food from the American Red Cross in a small village.

Winding Up the Watch on the Rhine

No longer will the doughboy profit by the exchange and live with a millionaire's income on his army pay. Here are U. S. soldiers quitting the Rhine encampment where they have been billeted since entering Germany after the armistice.

Outrunning The Marathoner

WHEN 10,000 ancient Greeks drove the Persian hordes from the plains of Marathon, they at once dispatched a courier to Athens to bear intelligence of their victory.

It took the messenger hours to reach the city, and so breathless was he that, as the people thronged eagerly about him to hear the news, he merely gasped, "Victory is ours"—and fell dead. That was several hundred years B. C.

Today, the papers of the world would get the news almost simultaneously with its happening, slap extras on their presses, and shortly the thrilling story would be in the hands of some millions of readers.

Papers have supplanted the courier, multiplied his effectiveness and increased his speed a hundred-fold.

Not only does the newspaper make public the news in the world of events, but it also keeps our information up-to-date on every article of human need, whether food, clothing, household appliances, necessities or luxuries. The latter news is found in the advertisements.

Advertising will help you. Whether you realize it or not, advertising is a big, vital force in your life. Through it, American genius and American manufacturers are putting within your reach the many comforts and conveniences of modern life.

Do not overlook this mighty and indispensable service which this paper offers with the rest of the day's news.

"More Coal," Demand French

Here is shown a group of women miners in the Ruhr, coal mines where French bayonets are backing up a demand for increased output.

At the first scheduled hearing Buckalew asked for an adjournment to prepare counsel and the matter was rested until last night, when he waived the hearing. Buckalew pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Gallagher has since that date been confined to the county jail held as a material witness.

SOUTH AMBOY MAN HELD FOR GRAND JURY

SOUTH AMBOY, Jan. 12.—The hearing of the case of Joseph Gallagher vs. Granville Buckalew slated for yesterday has been referred to the grand jury. Buckalew waived a hearing and was placed under $1,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

The case dates back to December 28, at which time Joseph Gallagher of Boston, Mass., charged Buckalew with assault and battery. According to Gallagher's story told to the police he was lured to a lonely spot in Conlogue's lane and there blackjacked, and robbed of a sum of money said to be $7.
