DISCUSS PLANS FOR NEW CHURCH MOVEMENT

Local Sunday School Workers Confer on Inter-Church World Movement

At a conference of Sunday School workers at the Exchange hotel in Montgomery, Friday afternoon, plans were made for the complete organization of Montgomery for the Inter-Church World Movement Survey. Dr. A. J. Dickinson of Birmingham attended the conference and discussed plans for the organization.

A Survey Council will be formed with representatives from the various religious and civic organizations of the city. This council will elect an executive committee, which will have active direction of the work. A director, with a clerical staff will be employed, and a complete religious and sociological survey of the city made. This will take several months, it is said, as it is planned to make it exhaustive and to have it taken by a force of trained workers.

W. R. Harrison, president of the Montgomery County Sunday School Association, presided over the meeting. A second meeting will be held in the next few days to complete the plans. General Superintendent Leon C. Palmer of the Alabama Sunday school association was made secretary of the committee.

JUDGE SANFORD TO HEAD RELIEF WORK

Well Known Attorney Takes Charge of Near-East Campaign in Montgomery

Judge W. H. Sanford has accepted the appointment as chairman of Montgomery county for the Near East Relief, which was formerly known as the American Committee for Armenian-Syrian Relief and which has recently been incorporated by Congress for the purpose of carrying on its work in the devastated countries of Western Asia, including Armenia, Syria, Persia, Palestine and other areas formerly held by the Turkish government.

In connection with this work, Judge Sanford said today:

"Although the people of Alabama and the nation have given and given again until it seems that every possible needy person in the world has been reached, a careful investigation of the needs of these people of Armenia and the surrounding countries, just recently concluded by Dr. Barton of the Near East Relief and a number of other eminent Americans, has brought forth the crying need that exists there at this very moment, in such a way that I feel it my duty to do what I can in this community to help alleviate this terrible suffering."

"A writer in a recent number of the National Geographic Magazine called it 'The Land of the Stalking Death'—and such it is in every truth, as shown by the reports of those men who have seen the actual conditions that exist there today. Herbert Hoover recently said that 'The Near East presents the most desperate situation in the world' and that after he had made a personal investigation of conditions there, he said that eight hundred thousand persons were homeless in Armenia alone, over a quarter of a million of whom are helpless orphans. The Near East Relief is now taking care of about eighty thousand and will help the others as fast as the American people provide the means."

"I feel sure that the people of Montgomery and Montgomery county will do their share in this great humanitarian work."

GLENWOOD RECRUIT ENLISTED BY NAVY

Parent Prescott, of Glenwood, Ala., enlisted in the navy at the local recruiting station Friday. Prescott signed up for a two year cruise, going in as an apprentice seaman. He was sent to the central office in Birmingham Friday, and will later go to Norfolk, Va., to begin his preliminary training. Petty Officer H. P. Gantt, of the local office, made a recruiting trip to several towns in the county Friday. La Pine, Ramer and several other little towns were vited on the trip. Publicity matter for the naval service was distributed on the trip and prospective recruits were interviewed.

Mr. Gantt plans to make a trip to Tuskegee in recruiting work as soon as the roads become better. He intended going to Tuskegee Friday, but recent rains had caused the roads to be so muddy that he decided to postpone the trip.

TO INSPECT BRIDGE.

J. L. Parker, senior highway engineer of the U. S. bureau of public roads, will leave Saturday for River Junction, Fla., where he will inspect construction work on the bridge being built across the Apalachicola river.

PRELIMINARY TRIAL.

John Davis, of Chilton county, charged with illicit distilling was tried before Commissioner James S. Parrish, Friday, found guilty, and bound over to the grand jury on a $500 bond.

POULTRY EXHIBITS ARE WELL ATTENDED

Dixie Poultry Association Show Proves Attractive to Many Visitors

Interested spectators continued to crowd in the show room of the Dixie Poultry Association Friday. This tenth annual show of southern poultry, is continuing to prove satisfactory to the officials of the association and also to the patrons. Both owners of exhibits and visitors are enthusiastic over the success thus far apparent.

The show rooms, 39-1-2 Commerce street, Friday were the scene of many discussions relative to poultry raising. Owners of the different exhibits were on hand and answered many questions concerning their methods of obtaining prize winning results in their birds.

Among the different kinds of information being given out by this aggregation of southern poultry men, is information concerning the breed of chickens to raise in the South. Breeders of every different variety on display have several fine points concerning their breed to disclose and it is the spectator who is already in the poultry business but who has not obtained the desired results, or the visitor who is planning to enter the business, who is gathering data from which they can decide which chicken is better suited to their needs.

Breeders on the scene seem unanimous in recommending a dual type of chicken for the small fancier. The different breeders which produce eggs and meat profitably are said to be better suited to the small poultry man. These breeds give him the advantage of raising meat of good quality from his chickens and at the same time produce eggs profitably.

Others favor breeding a special type. Some recommend that the poultry farm have different breeds for obtaining different products. For instance, there should be a meat chicken raised, and then there should be a breed of eggs producing fowl kept on the same farm. Others favor keeping only one special breed, the owner deciding whether he shall go into the meat side of production or into producing eggs.

Officials are convinced that the purpose of the show, to show what can be done and how, is being fully borne out. Interest among people who are at present in the business or who intend to enter it is aroused in the pure bred types of chicken, and the officials believe the poultry business in the south is being materially boosted thereby.

MURDER CASE AGAINST NEGRO IS DISMISSED

Rufus Graham, a negro, charged with the murder of Wavy McCants, another negro, near Grady Sunday night, at the preliminary hearing in the court of common pleas Friday was made happy when the solicitor asked that the case be not pressed. It was so ordered by Judge Winter Thornton.

According to testimony of witnesses, it was, as the man contended, an accident. It was stated that both negroes were examining a defective pistol when it exploded and shot the McCants negro, killing him.

A case against H. J. McLean for concealed pistol, was not pressed.

Cases against Irene James and Ruby Harris, alleged violation of the prohibition law, will be heard February 10. Twelve cases of alleged gaming were not pressed. One case was tried and is under consideration by Judge Thornton. Five other cases were continued until February 10.

WILL ATTEND MEETINGS

Miss Ethel Beane of Montgomery, field secretary of the Alabama Sunday School Association, will spend several days in Russell, Henry, and Coffee counties, in conference with County Association leaders. Plans will be made for the evangelistic campaign of the State organization in those counties.

"THE IRON HORSE" IS TRACTOR FEATURE

Successful Tractor Show Closes Friday; Many Farmers Visit Show During Week

"The Iron Horse," and such it is, a tractor made by the Samson Tractor Company, Janesville, Wis., and sold by the Montgomery Tractor and Implement Company, No. 8 Bibb street, arrived in Montgomery Friday. A driver had the iron horse carting around on Bibb street and Dexter avenue Friday afternoon.

This "horse," and the thing acts like an animal and not like a machine, is driven by reins and the driver walks back of it, directing its movements entirely by the ropes. The horse will go forward, backward, to either side, and other stunts at the will of the driver, the ropes controlling the gasoline engine and the steering gear. All sorts of agricultural work can be done by it, the dealers say. It can certainly be easily controlled.

It is the first one shown in Alabama and attracted a great deal of attention many negroes standing by remarking how like a mule the machine is, and seeming to want to drive it. It is a wonderfully perfect machine.

Professor M. L. Nichols, of the agricultural engineering department of Auburn, dealers declare deserve great credit for the tractor show which closed Friday with the closing of the cattleman's convention. The tractors were visited by hundreds of farmers and some eight or ten sales were made, also, dealers received a number of promising inquiries. The tractor agents who were here proclaimed the Montgomery show the best they have attended.

The parade Friday was a repetition of the ones on previous days and was seen by a large number of people. The moving pictures Thursday night attracted a good crowd also. They illustrated every phase of tractor manufacture and work in the farming line. "I candidly believe," said Prof. Nichols, "that the day of the tractor is here, and that it will solve many of our labor problems in the South."

INTEREST GROWS IN COMING MATCH

Excitement over the coming wrestling match between Jack Dawson and Tom Draak, scheduled for the city auditorium February 3, is growing among the fans of Montgomery and other nearby cities. Draak, the Netherlands champion, is a great favorite among the Birmingham fans, and already inquiries concerning the match are coming from men who have seen his work in the Magic City.

Friends of Draak describe him as the fastest, cleanest, strongest wrestler in the sport. His favorite trick, which has served to get him out of several tight places, is a kicking feat when his opponents fastens a head lock on him. When this deadly hold threatens him with defeat and caused his friends to hold their breath, he invariably lifts his body upright, draws his legs into the position of a closed jack knife, then straightens them with a force which seldom has to be repeated. Friends state that at several times when Draak has been in such a predicament he would straighten himself with such force as to almost lift his opponent clear of the mat.

Dawson is another 200 pound bunch of manhood, which has won quite a wrestling reputation. Among his victories on the mat is the one which won for him the international championship in San Francisco. Dawson has a reputation which promises that he will give the Netherlands champion a hard fight.

John Plombo, promoter who is arranging for the bout, has posted lithographed cards in the public places of Montgomery. These cards briefly explain the reputation of both men and the date of the match.
